CHAIR 'MARCH' 24 HOURS AWAY FOR MRS. HAHN

LAWYER GOES TO COURT

Attorney to Seek Authority for Appeal to U. S. Supreme Court, Execution Stay.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
(INS Staff Correspondent)

COLUMBUS—Death in the electric chair seemed only a little more than 24 hours away today for blond Anna Marie Hahn, Cincinnati poison slayer, but she clung desperately to the flickering candle of hope.

While her counsel, Joseph Hoodin, was planning to go into court this afternoon in a move to block the execution, the "blond iceberg" was pinning her hopes on an eleventh-hour intervention by Governor Martin L. Davey.

Remains Calm.

Mrs. Hahn, doomed to be the first woman to pay the supreme penalty in Ohio's "chair," calmly awaited her fate in her cell in the state prison. Tomorrow evening she is scheduled to walk "the last mile." But if she has to die, she says, she will meet the ordeal without flinching.

Her lawyer, Hoodin, prepared to go before Chief Justice Carl V. Weygandt of the supreme court at 1 o'clock this afternoon with a petition asking that the case be appealed to the supreme court of the United States.

No action is expected on Governor Davey's part until after the state supreme court has acted on this petition. The governor has given no intimation of what he would do.

The plight of the 31-year-old Mrs. Hahn is attracting considerable interest. She was convicted in Cincinnati last November of the murder by poison of Jacob Wagner, 78, a gardener, by a jury of 11 women and one man. The state contended she was guilty of other poisonings.

No Sympathy Drive.

Although a woman, there has been no sympathetic movement to prevent the execution, Mrs. Margaret Allman, director of welfare, the first woman cabinet member in Ohio, who is in charge of penal institutions, told International News Service that this is an "astonishing angle" of the case.

"No women's group has interceded in Mrs. Hahn's behalf," said Mrs. Allman. "Nobody has been to see us asking clemency for her.

SPEED CLEAN-UP

City Workers Run Ahead of Schedule, Plan Revised.

As Mansfield's spring clean-up campaign went into its second day, Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert announced a change of schedule that will send the city clean-up crew into the Fourth and Fifth wards one day earlier than had been planned.

Styert explained that city workmen were expected to finish the First and Sixth wards today and tomorrow will move into the Fourth and Fifth wards which they hope to be able to complete by Friday. Under the revised schedule, the crew will cover the Second and Third wards the last two days of the week.

Styert urged all residents to have their rubbish in containers at the curb the night before the designated clean-up day as the city crew gets started at 6 a. m.

FIRE AT BLIND SCHOOL

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Damage from a fire in the broom shop at the state school for the blind was estimated at $100 today by fire officials. There were no children in the shop when the fire started.

Seed corn, potatoes, onion sets, used building supplies, mules, ewes, fries, and fresh maple syrup are all advertized today in the little Want Ads. You can't fool the farmer. He doesn't need government help as long as he has Want Ads.

Pioneer Parade Makes History as City's Largest Crowd Turns Out for Observance

STREETS, WALKS JAMMED

They were taking down the bunting and the decorations today, and the day that brought the largest crowd in the city's history to downtown Mansfield was on its way into history.

If you were in the huge throng that saw the Northwest territory parade, or at the Fairground last night for the pageant, your guess is as good as anyone's as to exactly how many people were in Mansfield yesterday.

Estimates ran from 10,000 to 100,000. Somewhere between was the truth.

E. J. Mildren, secretary director of the Northwest Territory commission of Ohio said: "It was the largest crowd that's greeted us since we were in Marietta." That included Youngstown, Steubenville and a score of other towns.

Steubenville turned out 50,000 strong. Mansfield, he insisted, turned out better than that.

"The only other reception to compare with this since we left Marietta was at Steubenville, and I think this one surpasses the Steubenville observance," he said. Both Mildren and White spoke in Central park yesterday afternoon after the parade disbanded.

It was an almost unanimous opinion in the city that the parade, which included more than 100 floats, marching units, wagons, automobiles and trucks, was the largest ever seen in Mansfield.

It required an hour for the parade to pass as the colorful line stretched in from Park avenue west to Central park, around the park, then over North Main, West Fourth and North Mulberry streets back to Park avenue again.

Line of March Crowded.

Thousands jammed streets and sidewalks along the entire line of march. Windows in virtually every downtown building were filled with spectators and dozens of persons climbed to the tops of buildings to

START NEW QUIZ OF 'DAVEY FUND'

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — Grand jury investigation of the reported shakedown for state civil service employes for contributions to Governor Davey's campaign fund spread to another front today as the Hamilton county regular grand jury began a probe of violations among liquor department employes in Cincinnati.

At the same time, Charles Sawyer, Democratic candidate for governor, declared he would go on the air Friday night over a statewide radio hookup to flay these reported practices.

"In fairness to the people of Ohio," Sawyer said, "I should like to have it plainly known how I feel about the five per cent assessment now being collected from state employes for primary campaign purposes."

Of his intended radio address, the Cincinnati business man said "I will deal in no uncertain terms with this strong arm method of raising campaign funds which cannot fail to demoralize public service in Ohio."

Meanwhile, Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy planned to recall Ruth Carter, secretary to Dan T. Moore, securities division chief, for additional testimony. She testified for more than 30 minutes yesterday afternoon before the special grand jury recessed for the day.

Duffy said he would ask Common Pleas Judge Dana F. Reynolds to excuse G. E. Martin, a

THREE VICTIMS OF PICKPOCKETS

As an aftermath to the Northwest Territory celebration three persons victimized by pickpockets today counted their losses totaling $64.

M. S. Moser, of Shiloh, and Thomas B. Miller, Willard, told police yesterday that they lost their purses while attending the ceremonies at Central park. Moser said his purse contained $40, while Miller reported a loss of $20. W. E. Smith, of Plymouth, reported to police that his pocketbook containing $4 was taken while he watched the parade at North Walnut street and Park avenue.

MERCURY SOARS

Hits 82 Degrees This Afternoon, More Heat on Way.

Climbing to 82 degrees at noon, the mercury today threatened to set a new mark for the season. The previous high was 83, recorded last Wednesday.

Despite a brisk wind and partly cloudy skies, the forecast predicted continued fair and warm weather for tonight and Wednesday, with showers due by Wednesday.

Record Crowd Sees Floats In Northwest Parade

Contrasts Stand Out As Pioneers Retrace Steps

Life 150 Years Ago and Today Emphasized In City's Longest and Most Colorful Parade In Years.

EDITOR'S NOTE—Helen Allyn of the Cleveland Press staff is spending a week on The News-Journal, while Jane Williams of The News-Journal takes her place on the Press.

* * * * *

By HELEN ALLYN

No one who saw yesterday's parade ever again will ask, "What's the idea of the covered wagon on this year's license plates?"

All that is left today of the pioneers' second trek through Mansfield, is that small black picture on the plates—and a memory of a parade that brought the old and new together in one of the longest and most colorful processions Mansfield has seen for many years.

Everywhere one looked yesterday, he was struck with the contrasts between life in Ohio 150 years ago and in our own streamlined age today.

Modern 'Pioneers.'

Even the pioneers took on a modern air as they swung down the avenue, nonchalantly puffing at English briar pipes, their buckskin coats flapping with a definite college-bred swing.

Every float that looked like 1788 had a brand new counterpart for contrast . . . The old horse-drawn ambulance and hearse drove by . . . and right behind it was a 1938 model, long, sleek and fast.

Women on the sidelines tipped their new straw hats at a becoming angle, powdered their noses and straightened their lipstick and watched the floats roll by with sunbonneted ladies as decorations.

"Hoopskirts may have been all right in those ages," one modern housewife remarked, "but I'd like to see anyone getting into a bus

OCEAN CHOPPY

CHARLESTON, S. C. — (AP) — President Roosevelt waited for clear weather today before resuming his vacation voyage to the Virgin Islands after an overnight anchorage inside Samana bay near the eastern end of Santo Domingo.

A threatening storm sent the cruiser Philadelphia with the president and his party aboard into the shelter of the Dominican bay early last night. A choppy sea during the day broke the chief executives good weather luck and prevented fishing.

"The president spent a quiet day dividing his time between his quarters and the forecastle deck," said last night's radio message to the navy yard here.

HITLER'S TRAIN ROARS TO ROME

Speeds to Duce's $20,000,000 Welcome and Six-Day Visit With Dictator.

BULLETIN

BOLOGNA, Italy — (U.P.) — Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's special train arrived here today and the chancellor was given an enthusiastic ovation by a crowd of 50,000.

(By United Press)

ROME—Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's special train, guarded at every yard, raced down through northern Italy today toward Rome and a Roman triumph.

A holiday had been declared throughout Italy as part of Premier Benito Mussolini's $20,000,000 welcome to his guest and fellow partner in the "Rome-Berlin axis" of diplomatic co-operation, here for a six-day state visit.

Hitler's special train, followed by a second train bearing lesser members of his large entourage, crossed the Brenner Pass, the historic gateway through the Alps between Italy and what is now part of Germany, early today on its way to Bolzano, Verona, Bologna, Florence, Arezzo, Chiusi and Rome, where it was due at 8:20 p. m. (3:20 p. m. EDT.

The weather was splendid, and crowds gathered early here along the four-mile route from the new Ostia station where Hitler arrives, to the old Quirinal palace where he will be the guest of King Victor Emmanuel.

JACKIE SCORES

Coogan Victor in Two Court Actions Over Riches.

LOS ANGELES— (AP) —Jackie Coogan glowed today with the elation of his first sweeping victory in a legal fight with his mother and stepfather for "The Kid's" onetime film fortune.

Saying that "I do not think a child is bound to give his services to his parents," Superior Judge Emmet H. Wilson overruled two demurrers to Coogan's $4,000,000 accounting suit and rejected several defense motions.

He denied a petition by attorneys for Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Bernstein to dismiss the receivership of Coogan-Bernstein properties, varyingly estimated to be worth $250,000 or $500,000.

Sally To Lecture At Harvard

BALTIMORE —(INS)— Sally Rand, who stepped from a night club floor to the legitimate stage, on Thursday will step just as blithely from the stage to lecture platform — at Harvard!

From a couple of feather fans to the hallowed ivy of Cambridge is quite a jump but Miss Rand will complete the hop when she boards a plane to speak to Harvard's class of 1941 on the subject, "How To Be Intelligent Even Though Educated."

Miss Rand's secretary said definitely for Miss Rand that she would fulfill the engagement.

LEGISLATURE TO TACKLE RELIEF PUZZLE MAY 16

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Ohio's legislature will come back May 16 to wrestle with its third so-called relief crisis.

Gov. Martin L. Davey in a speech broadcast last night called a special session for that date to consider legislation intended to relieve financially-distressed cities.

The problem will be in no way unique to Ohio's assembly members. They took office on Jan. 1, 1937, and at the end of that month found relief funds exhausted. So they passed stop-gap measures.

These lasted until April 15, when the entire state relief setup collapsed and its administrative organization disbanded. Nothing was done to alter the situation.

Last November the legislature returned upon Gov. Davey's call, a principal reason for which was relief legislation. The solons wound up the session in the late hours of Feb. 28, this year, after approving at the last minute measures that provided $12,000,000 for relief and placed administration in the hands of local governments.

'Stop-Gap' Program.

Now they are coming back to debate laws designed to supply poor aid funds for the remainder of the year. By Governor Davey's own recent admission, the program-to-be likely will be of a stop-gap nature. He told officials of Ohio cities two weeks ago that the pressing need was to care for indigents this year.

"We will take care of 1939 when it comes," he declared.

The governor did not outline what relief program he would recommend, but this he did say:

"I doubt very much whether a majority of either house would vote for new state taxes. . . . We will do the best we can against adverse sentiment."

ENDORSE 'ERNIE'

Dem Leaders Back Kallmerten for State Committee.

E. B. Kallmerten, Richland county Democratic executive committee chairman, today had been endorsed for the 17th district state central committee post after party leaders in the district agreed that it is Richland county's turn to elect a committeeman.

Endorsement of Kallmerten was made at a meeting of district central and executive committees at Mt. Vernon.

The district committee post has been held for the last two terms by M. R. Hayes of Delaware county, who, it was understood, will not be a candidate for re-election. Richland county has not had a Democratic state committeeman for 12 years. Committee terms are for two years.

Party leaders also endorsed Mrs. Freer Bittinger of Ashland for re-election to the women's state central committee.

LOSING MONEY HERE NOW, SAYS UTILITY HEAD

SILENT ON FIGURES

Council Group Confers for Two Hours, Fails to Reach Contract Agreement.

BULLETIN

Chairman Russell D. Porch, of council's utilities committee, expressed surprise this afternoon at the vigorous stand taken by E. M. Tharp, Ohio Fuel Gas company general manager, for higher gas rates in Mansfield than those now in effect. He indicated the committee would oppose any attempt to increase rates.

The Ohio Fuel Gas company is going to seek a rate increase in Mansfield—and is emphatic about it.

That was revealed today by E. M. Tharp, general manager of the company, after council's utilities committee met for two hours last night with William C. Mead, Mansfield division manager, and wound up with Mead rejecting the committee's proposal, which would reduce the present rates, and offering a counter-proposal, higher than the present figures.

Mead could not be reached to reveal the figures contained in the gas company's proposal, and Tharp, reached by The News-Journal at Toledo, said he would prefer not to give them out himself, but would rather have them come from Mead.

Leaves No Doubt.

Tharp left no doubt as to what stand the gas company would take in the question of a new rate contract. The present contract expires May 15.

"Certainly we will have to have an increase in rates," Tharp said. "The settlement made in Mansfield in 1935 was made on an extreme compromise basis, and has been an out-of-pocket loss to the company since."

Tharp said the present rate was the lowest obtained in the state at the time it was accepted, and said that Mead had been given several proposals — all of which amounted to the same average cost—to submit to the council committee.

Tharp had no comment on the utilities committee's proposal.

Silent on Counter-Offer.

Russell D. Porch, chairman of the committee, said today that the company had proposed a rate contract which would increase the cost of gas to Mansfield consumers but said he was not authorized to reveal the figures.

"We met last night, but we were unable to agree on either rates or length of contract. We have not decided on our future course of action. That's all I am authorized to say," Porch said today.

Filmland Wonders Who Got Simone's Gold House Keys

HOLLYWOOD—(U.P.)—The identity of the holder of two golden keys to Simone Simon's house door set the screen colony to guessing today.

The French motion picture star stirred interest in the question by her conversation with reporters as she left the courtroom yesterday after an appearance at the theft and forgery hearing of her former secretary, Sandra Martin.

"Wouldn't you like to know?" she answered a question. "Well, you never will."

Miss Simon sent two solid gold keys to a friend as a Christmas present, she admitted. Questioning in court did not reveal the identity of the friend. Whoever he or she was, the friend also received a dressing gown worth $180, slippers, and a gold watch shaped like a golf ball.

DOOMED TO DIE

Gang Aid of "Pretty Boy" Floyd Loses Supreme Court Appeal.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. — (U.P.) —Adam Richetti, one time friend and companion of Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, must die in Missouri's lethal gas chamber for his part in the Kansas City union station massacre of June 17, 1933, division two of the state supreme court ruled today.

Thirty Years a Telephone Man, Retires to 'Rest'

After 30 years with that company and some 25 additional years working at other jobs, Mr. Murphy believes he is entitled to a rest, he said today.

He has a brand new traveling bag, the farewell gift of the people with whom he has worked for three decades, but he hasn't yet determined how far or where he will take it. For the present, he says, he will be content to putter around his flower garden in his back yard at 40 Arthur avenue.

Although Mr. Murphy retires tonight, his name will not be forgotten at the local telephone company. A grandson, Jack Murphy, 24, of Canton, started in at the office yesterday to learn the telephone business and carry on in his grandfather's path.

The elder Mr. Murphy is proud that during the past 30 years he has been with the telephone company, service has been shut down only twice. Once was during the flood of 1913 when power was off for a day because the boiler room was flooded. The only other time was when the Armistice was declared, Nov. 11, 1918, and the employes left at 8:30 a. m. to celebrate until 5:30 p. m.

For the past 15 years, Mr. Murphy has been commercial superintendent of the company. In the early 1900's, he was a member of the city police department two years under Mayor Pat Henry and in 1903 he was elected service director for a two-year term.

"I've seen a great change in telephones and the service in the course of my service," Mr. Murphy said today. "We've had four different kinds of phones—the ring up, the wall phone with operator, the upright desk phone and now the cradle kind."

When he first went with the company the mechanical operation was far different, too. From the manual system where the operator used the old jack and plug system to get a number, he has seen the evolution to the present automanual type, where the operator sits comfortably in a chair, instead of on a high stool, and through touching keys, gets the number much in the manner of running an adding machine.

Mr. Murphy is a true Mansfielder, born and raised on a farm just a mile and a half from downtown. He has one son, Earl C. Murphy of Canton and a daughter, Mrs. Andrew Worth of Cleveland.

LITTLE FLOWER CLUB CONDUCTS ELECTION

Miss Veronica Hanley, Mrs. Joseph E. Kuebler, Mrs. Jerome Hanley Named to Posts; Mrs. Ehalt Gives Paper.

CARRYING out the theme of yesterday's events in celebration of the Northwest territory, Miss Veronica Hanley, West First street, greeted members of the Little Flower Study club wearing a costume which was in fashion about 150 years ago. Officers for the coming club season were elected during the business meeting.

Miss Hanley will assume the duties of president in the fall. She will be assisted by Mrs. Joseph E. Kuebler vice president and Mrs. Jerome Hanley secretary-treasurer.

The paper "Culture in the South" was presented by Mrs. James Ehalt. "There are various things," she stated, "which set the culture of people and each district has its own particular customs and mode of life.

"The composition of each district governs the manner of life, which in turn is regulated to some extent by the climate and geographic conditions. ace continued. "Through all changes in the South the Negro has survived and has improved his conditions until now there are many educated and prosperous colored people.

"Ten years ago there were few large cities in the South, but today each state has several large commercial centers. The network of good roads has extended steadily and the cities owe their steady growth to the tourist trade.

"Some of the oldest universities in the country are in the South, the oldest having been founded in 1693. At present each state has at least one first class university which is either endowed or denominational," Mrs. Ehalt said by way of conclusion.

Miss Hanley served luncheon from a table which was decorated with a covered wagon and team of oxen centerpiece flanked by low bowls of lilies of the valley. The next meeting will be a covered-dish dinner May 16 at the home of Mrs. F. W. Gilig, Forest Hill.

Calendar For May Looks Bright With Gay Social Events

Society is apparently in for an exciting and brilliant month during May judging from the smart variety of events to be sponsored for the next few weeks. Of course, of primary interest this week is the lecture to be given by Mrs. Dorothy Fuldheim Thursday at the high school auditorium. The Temple Emmanuel Sisterhood is sponsoring the affair and Mrs. Norman Mann is in charge of arrangements.

The wedding of Miss Mary Lou Kaufman and Ivan C. Bettiker which will take place at Derry Saturday is creating considerable interest and has been and will be the excuse for gay pre-nuptial parties.

Sunday members of many of the clubs and sororities will honor their mothers at parties for Mother's day. Among the sororities planning affairs are Delta Theta Tau, Alpha Pi Sigma and Chi Sigma. The Woodland P. T. A. the Western avenue group, Bushnell P. T. A. and the West Fifth school association are all planning various social affairs for the latter part of the month, including a lawn fete and open house.

Two dances and a tea are also on the May calendar as prominent events. The American Association of University Women will entertain May 14 and the Student club will have an informal dance May 21 at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Those in charge of the affair include Miss Lucille Kearns, Miss Elizabeth Weiner, Mrs. Jay Simons, Mrs. Clifford Montgomery, Mrs. James Crum. The A. A. U. W. will also sponsor a tea May 24 at the Westbrook Country club in honor of girls graduating from Mansfield high school.

Lines For Formal Wear

Gay and spirited apparel includes something black for evening as a preview of the fashion favorites. A black chiffon dinner dress is worn by Andrea Leeds, cinema actress, at right, over a mint green slip. This dress has a very full skirt, the hipline in both dresses being kept slim. The hem of this skirt has a cartridge pleated ruffle and sleeves are short and puffed. Zorina, lovely ballerina star of a new screen technicolor musical, left, is wearing an exquisite gown in black tulle with shirred bodice and sequin studded skirt.

Keep Faith In Husband Adviser Says

By VIRGINIA LEE

I have been thinking about the woman whose letter reached me yesterday and which I answered in the column.

Her husband seems to have lost all interest in her and in their home in the country. At least he never is at home, according to this lonely wife's letter. He even stays away all some nights, and she is alone all the time. She eats and sleeps alone, and if she goes to a show it is alone.

She has lost her love for this man, feeling that she has been lied to and deceived. She hates to break up her home, but does not know what else to do.

I told her she had two alternatives—to make her own life, as her husband was making his — apart from her. Or to divorce him and make a new life for herself.

I have been thinking about my mother and her faith that things would always come out right. She had so many trials and so much hard work—leaving all her family and going far away from familiar surroundings. She suffered poverty, and pain, but she seemed always to retain that faith that things would eventually work out. "Try not to worry, darling," she used to write me when I was having trouble too. "It will all work out in the end."

Now maybe if this wife and other wives who are having hard times, try to have this faith that their lives will work out in time, it will tide them over and they will be happy again. Men change. Things that intrigue them and make them lose interest in their homes lose their allure. And the thought of a loyal and loving woman and a cozy home seems very sweet to them—and they return to the old love and the love nest. It is not fair, of course, that they should make their wives suffer so, but "to err is human," and maybe if this wife can find patience to order her life so that she has other interests, but keeps herself and her home ready to welcome her man back when he feels the need of them, it will be the happiest way. In other words, if she has faith and keeps serene and poised, things will work out for her and she will keep her home and regain her husband.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, May 4.

The astral interventions seem to point to a day of drastic action, with suddenly-precipitated change, travel or adventure of quite unpredictable importance. Radical, possibly devastating situations may have to be dealt with. These may be precipitated by a death, bereavement or other sudden separation.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of major happenings, with much sudden developing which may have a bearing on the future destinies and fortunes. Employment, business, private afflictions and secret ambitions are in the balance, to be manipulated with sagacity for ultimate gratification.

A child born on this day may be restless, unsettled and subject to peculiar fears and mental anxieties. It may be well equipped for success in employment or in rather unorthodox occupations.

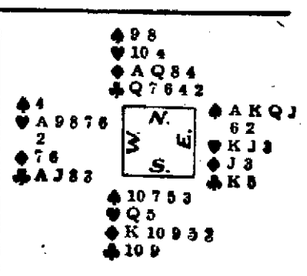
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

VICTORY FOR MORPHEUS

SLEEPINESS is hardly considered an adjunct of winning bridge, but most anything you can think of may be true at times in this funny game. Inattentiveness which causes a player to perpetrate some unbelievably bad bid or play has been known to redound to his advantage because the missing cards happened to be distributed in his favor.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable).

Coming late in a long evening of play, this deal brought forth the worst bridge of the night from all concerned. East started it with an opening bid of 2-Spades which was far from justified. West called 3-Hearts and East 4-Spades, which crowded the bidding so badly that West, who really should have spoken more if he trusted his partner, was scared out of any further action. Or perhaps he was just too tired.

South hadn't bothered to listen to the bidding. So far as he was concerned, it was his turn to lead against a 3-No Trumps contract, so decided to open the fourth-best from his star suit, diamonds. As a consequence his side got two tricks, holding the contract to five-odd. Had he realized he was leading against spades, he would have led a club. And if you can find a moral in this, make the most of it.

Take Rest Cure Some Week-End

By JULIET SHELBY

(Central Press Writer on Beauty)

Spring has come and so has spring fever. Are you beginning to feel that you "want to be alone?" Even a dream prince can get on your nerves if you're in that mood.

Of course the lucky ones throw a few things in a bag and rush off for a quiet week-end—destination unknown. But if you can't get away from town, you can get away from it all. Just treat yourself to a rest-cure week-end at home. You'll feel just as top-notch as the girl who got away, and it won't cost a dime.

Take a couple of days off and get a much needed between season rest. On Saturday go on a liquid diet, and plan to spend most of the day in bed. You can drink all types of fruit juices, clear broth, milk and tea, either plain or with lemon. Have a hot beverage at the beginning, middle and end of the day and have a glass of fruit juice, tea, milk or broth every two hours. Put on fresh night clothes and prepare for a day of lolling around. Smooth the sheets on your bed and place the pillows in the position that is most comfortable for you. You may want to read or catch up on a good-grooming rite that you like to do. So get yourself a good sized bedside table and keep it very tidy.

Second Day's Program.

On the second day of your home week-end go back to your regular eating habits, and take a long walk in the morning. Then devote the remainder of the day to a beautifying routine. Give your hair a shampoo and set it so that it will look its best on Monday. Next cleanse your face and spread on a coating of your favorite lubricating cream.

Now take a long luxurious bath with all the trimmings. Revel in bath salts and scented soaps. Rub on toilet water and dust yourself with talcum powder. Do you use a perspirant? If so now is the time to put it on. Read the directions before applying it and obey them carefully.

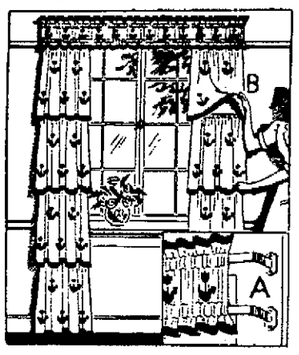
Smart New Curtains, Drapes Made This Way.



Dainty—Airy—Lovely.

The living room looking a little dingy these bright spring days? Gay flounced curtains dress it up.

They're inexpensive, quickly made—and you'll fall for the clever valance that looks like a smart new cornice.

Imagine these draperies in a cool, tulip-patterned chintz, crimson and green or gray. Or in lemon-yellow with an all-over design in gray and emerald green. Or in Swedish blue piped in red.

To make the valance, simply take a straight length of material and shirr on two flat rods with a frill on both edges (A).

For summer glass curtains alone, use one of the many lovely suggestions in our 32-page booklet—such as dotted swiss held back with rickrack rosettes. Diagrams and step-by-step directions for draperies, valances, cornices.

Send 10c for your copy of NEW IDEAS IN MAKING CURTAINS AND DRAPERIES TO Mansfield News-Journal Home Service, 635 Sixth Ave., New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and the NAME of booklet.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

MARY LOOKED at me attentively as I told her that I had another asset besides teaching ability upon which I was counting most for success in my plan to thwart her father-in-law's plot against her.

"In my early youth I had the inestimable privilege of knowing Madame——." I named the great actress of another generation who had been my mother's dearest friend.

"Oh!" Mary breathed. "What I would give to have seen her!"

"It was a rare experience," I assented, "but I had a much more valuable one than merely seeing her act. She took a great fancy to me, and professed to see dramatic ability in me. She begged my mother to let her teach me 'what little she knew,' as she put it, and my mother, to humor her, assented. But when, after a year of intensive training, she wanted me to take up acting as a profession, and offered to put me in a company where I eventually would 'reach the top rung of the ladder,' as she put it, my mother was firm in her refusal."

"Oh! dear!" Mary's voice was a wail. "Weren't you just crushed to the earth? How could she?"

Acting for Best.

"She was sure she was acting for the best," I told her, unwilling that even after so many years any hint of criticism should be directed toward my idolized, little mother. "And I wasn't crushed at all. I should have loved it, certainly—any normal girl would have—but even at that early day my ambitions were more in the direction of writing plays than in acting them."

"You could have done both," Mary said with a rebellious note.

"A truce to that," I told her. "It's a million years gone. But I am tremendously grateful today for that early training. I would back madame's dramatic instinct, knowledge and training against Philip Veritzen's any day. And—I never have forgotten the things she taught me."

"You've never forgotten anything in all your life," Mary said with enthusiastic energy. "But do you realize what a grind this is going to be for you—getting me out of one interpretation and into another? It isn't fair! I can't let you do it! What would Uncle Dicky say?"

Answers Questions.

I laughed outright at her impetuosity.

"I'll answer those questions in their order," I told her. "First, I realize far better than you do what a grind it's going to be for both of us. We shall barely have time for sleep, meals and just enough brisk walking in the fresh air to keep us fit. Nothing else—not even the hint of a movie or a restaurant dinner. We shall have our meals sent up so as not to waste time in the dining room. Second, it's perfectly fair. I shall love it. Third, I'm going to do it whether you let me or not. Fourth, when I tell your Uncle Dicky of this dastardly thing which your father-in-law is trying to do to you, I shall have to take a firm grip on his coat tails to prevent his running off and executing summary justice upon the great Philip Veritzen. He is even more anxious than I that you succeed in this role. You needn't be afraid of his making any objection, no matter how much of my time it takes."

Mary Would Quit.

I put out my hand, and touched hers.

"Have I answered them all?" I asked, smiling.

She caught my hands in hers and held them tightly as she answered my query.

"You've done more than answer them," she said. "You've almost persuaded me that it's all right for you to work like a galley slave for me, and I'll radio the cock-eyed universe that's some achievement, for I was all prepared to throw up the whole thing rather than let you in for anything like that."

"I'm glad you had a second thought, Mary," I told her, smiling, "for you would have had about as much chance to throw up the whole thing as—"

"As an ice cream concession would have to make money at the North Pole," she gibed. "But I'm registering one exception to that regime of no restaurant dinners. Have you forgotten that a week from last night we must go to that French restaurant again, and do some more 'listening in'?"

Don't Keep on Having Constipation!

If constipation's got you down—so you feel heavy, tired and dopey—it's time you did something about it. And something more than taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble.

If you eat only the things most people do, the chances are that a very simple fact causes your constipation—you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean heavy food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, eat crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day and drink plenty of water. All-Bran is not only rich in "bulk"—it also contains the natural intestinal tonic, vitamin B₁.

Household Hints

Scalloped Potatoes
Stewed Tomatoes Green Salad
Fresh or Stewed Fruit
Cookies Tea, Coffee or Milk

House cleaning time is here and also out-of-door time when one doesn't want to spend so much time indoors cooking. Ham is an excellent meat to cook for a family and to have on hand. Such good sandwiches can be made from home cooked ham, um-m-m! Cold sliced ham is so good with vegetables and a salad, and the scraps may be used in various delicious ways, so a ham is a good buy. Have you baked ham in a blanket? I am giving you the recipe today. A ham is also an excellent meat to serve at a picnic or to a church or club group. If you are busy house cleaning, why not boil the potatoes in their skins, while you are doing the breakfast dishes, and cream instead of scalloping them for dinner? And a good-sized batch of cookies is another time saver. True, a batch of cookies takes time to make, but after they are done they can be served alone as dessert, with stewed fruit, simple pudding, with tea in the afternoon, etc.

Today's Recipes.

BAKED HAM IN A BLANKET —Four cups flour, one cup brown sugar, two tablespoons ground cloves, two tablespoons ground cinnamon, two tablespoons dry mustard, one teaspoon pepper, cider or water. Mix dry ingredients and add enough cider or water to make a dough. Roll a sheet large enough to cover a ham all over. Bake uncovered for 15 minutes in a 400-degree oven, then reduce to 300 degrees for three hours.

Simple But Pretty.

Prepare strawberry or raspberry flavored gelatine according to directions on package. Chill. Place slices of banana in an attractive arrangement in mold; when gelatine mixture is slightly thickened, pour into mold. Chill until firm. Unmold gelatine. Arrange banana slices in an attractive design around base of mold. Serve with whipped cream.

THEATER

Hollywood statistics say that the chances of a girl who migrates to Hollywood becoming a star are 30,000 to one against her! To quote further from the warnings of studio casting directors, the 15,000 chances against one, of her becoming a featured player and about 5,000 to one against her becoming even a bit player. Of the 200 girls who worked in Paramount's new musical, "College Swing," not more than half a dozen are reported to come from Southern California. Some are from England, France and Latin America—to the melting pot of Hollywood, LeRoy Prinz, dance maestro reports.

Murder On The Campus.

An opportunity for students of crime to operate in a scholarly atmosphere is furnished by "Extortion" on the double-bill with "The Good Earth" at the Majestic Theater tomorrow. In directing the filming of the search for the murderer of the hated college proctor, an actual class room at the University of California was used to give authenticity to the background. Mary Russell and Scott Colton are the two featured players. In the other film, Luise Rainer shows how an actress acts to be granted the Motion Picture Academy Award for the second successive year. Paul Muni supports her in the dramatic story of China.

* * *

Broadway To Arkansas.

Although the locale of "Radio City Revels," tune show at the Ritz tomorrow, is New York City, Bob Burns takes part of the action to a showboat and rural section of Arkansas. Swinging along and singing with the bazooka blower are Jack Oakie, Kenny Baker, Ann Miller, Hal Kemp, Helen Broderick and a host of other well-known radio artists. Because Bob Burns plays a sleep-walking song writer, he's sure he'll never have an easier role to play. "It sure was nice to lie in bed and get paid for it," Burns remarked after the filming. "There's nothin' us Arkansas folks would rather do than take it plum easy."

* * *

Lamour And The Jungle.

On a recent radio broadcast, Dorothy Lamour said she'd scream if anyone said "jungle" to her again, but she makes such a fetching South Sea Islander in "Her Jungle Love" showing at the Madison Theater through tomorrow, that we can't blame the producers for dressing Miss Lamour as a siren in a sarong. But the news is that Miss Lamour is now making "Tropic Holiday." We sympathize with her.

* * *

Another In the Comedy Cycle.

Add to the cockeyed comical cycle "There's Always a Woman," opening tomorrow at the Ohio theater with Joan Blondell and Melvyn Douglas appearing as the sparring team. Besides comedy, there is a thin thread of mystery promised. Briefly, the plot concerns the mad antics of a bewildering young blond wife who attempts to prove to her detective-husband that she, too, can be a Sherlockian sleuth. After a murder and a few first class investigations, the poor husband finally has to get a warrant to search his own home. Mary Astor and Frances Drake are in the cast.

NEW YORK'S EITHER GOOD OR NATIONAL LEAGUE'S AWFUL BAD.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK—(INS)—Mr. (Fahrenheit) Terry's New York Giants aren't much to look at. In fact, the last time I was looking, which was in the 1937 world series, everybody also wasn't, large numbers of people humanely averting their gaze from the melancholy scene below. As a championship ball nine, the Giants were a pretty morbid and defunct property then. And, having done nothing about it, they ought to still seem so now.

As a matter of fact, they're either awful good or the rest of that league they're in is awful bad. For they started west on their first swing around last night behing an 11-game winning streak and a 3½ game lead over the National league field. They lost the second game of the season to the Bees. They won all the rest from the Bees, Phillies and Dodgers, some close, others not.

The class of the National league contention is in the west, of course. But that's where it has been while the Giants were winning two straight pennants. They did that latter with pitching, Indian love tokens, wish fulfillment and the tops of old milk bottles, strung on a cord and worn as a lavaliere under the sleeping garment in the dead of night.

This time, the boys have become unwontedly violent, hitting 18 homers in 12 games, three of them yesterday by Moore, Leiber, Ripple to give the Giants a 7-4 victory over the Dodgers, their 11th in a row. Melton pitched his fourth victory, the Dodgers not getting anywhere until the eighth. They still didn't.

The Indians went further into the lead in the American league by putting on a 10-run inning and beat the Tigers, 11-3, while the Senators were blowing a close one to the Yankees, 3-2. Averill's home run with one on started the orgy of scoring against Wade in the fourth and Eisentadt and Benton, who followed—did just that. They followed Wade to the club house.

Johnny Allen, returning to official favor, pitched a seven-hitter. The victory was Cleveland's fifth in six games with the Tigers.

* * *

DI MAGGIO'S homer, his second in two days, and doubles by Henrich and Dickey, gave the Yanks their decision over Washington. Pearson, giving up a run each in the sixth and seventh, finally was forced out in the eighth, Murphy finishing. Gehrig was dropped to sixth position in the batting order for the first time in 13 years

WHITEHEAD LOST TO GIANTS FOR SEASON

CINCINNATI — (UP) — Second Baseman Burgess Whitehead will be lost to the National league leading New York Giants for the remainder of the season, Manager Bill Terry announced today. He will be placed on the voluntary retired list. Whitehead, who played 306 consecutive games until the opening of this season, submitted to an appendectomy on Feb. 19 and never recuperated

Son Learns Fade-Away, Says 'Fade-Away Jim'

By PAUL SIMMONS, Associated Press Sports Writer.

ATLANTA—"They called me 'Fade-Away' Jim,'" he said, the expression on his weather-beaten face softening. "Some called me 'Old Sarge,' but I liked the other better."

Baseball had lost track of the old twirling ace—Jim Bagby's 48 now—until the other day when his son, Jim, jr., pitched for Boston.

Jim, jr., had never seen a major league game. Then on opening day he was tossed in by the Red Sox against the Yankees—and he won!

Old Jim is in the laundry business here. He rarely finds time for baseball now, this strong-armed ace who won 31 games in 1920, pitched Cleveland into the world series and knocked a home run to help the Indians win their only series.

Had Pitching Magic.

Jim's eyes twinkle as he recalls those years from 1915 to 1921 when his pitching magic all but drove batsmen wild.

"Babe Ruth has cussed me until he was blue in the face. He'd swing at my pitches just like the rest—swing like a wild man. He'd whiff out, and his bat would wind up between his knees."

That fade-away was Jim's own. "I showed a hundred pitchers how to throw it, but none of them ever got it unless it was Herb Pennock, or maybe Sam Jones, or—"

Old Jim's eyes grew dreamy.

"—Or," he continued, "my son, Jim, jr.—he got a good start as a rookie with the Boston Red Sox.

"I told him how to throw it, how to turn it loose and how to swing his arm. He's working on it but he hasn't got it perfect yet. If he ever does, it will help make him one of the game's greatest.

Jim paused. He had a word for the records. His fade-away is not the same thing as the modern screwball—it is five times more effective, he asserts.

"It's a slow ball gradually fading to the side," he says. "You swing at something and it's not there.

"The screwball, if I have it right, is a fast ball, screwing away to the side. It's there and gone."

Old Jim doesn't want to start an argument, though. He is in business now, doing well; he has a nice home and is satisfied.

As for baseball: "Well," he says,

BAGBY, sr. . . . Babe Ruth cussed him.

"I'm leaving it to Jim, jr. The boy is going somewhere.

Taught Son.

"And," he adds thoughtfully, "I never tried to teach him much about baseball. I just told him about the fade-away and gave him some points on such things as control . . . body and shoulder movement . . . turning the ball loose . . . fielding his position . . . watching the man on first . . . and I told him not to let anybody change his pitching style.

"I couldn't make a baseball player out of him. He had to have it in him—and it's coming out. I'm proud of him."

Tygers Find Hallabrin, Ex-Tygers Too Tough in Spring Grid Game.

By OSCAR RUHL

MANSFIELD high school football players now have a general idea of what rivals had to contend with in the person of Johnny Hallabrin during the last couple of fall seasons.

The Tygers' All-Ohio halfback was on the wrong side yesterday as Coach Russ Murphy's 1938 candidates lined up against the Alumni in a practice game at Empire field, and he played a pretty important part in a 26 to 2 triumph over the gridders who will help carry the Mansfield banner at Stadium field next fall.

Few Vets Used.

With the exception of three or four players, the entire high school lineup was filled with inexperienced talent. The majority of the players Murphy is depending on to carry the heavy burden next fall were not in uniform yesterday due to their track activities.

He was satisfied that the defeat wasn't worse as the lineup his team faced was probably tougher than any it will be called upon to tackle at anytime next fall.

In addition to Hallabrin, the ex-Tygers' lineup included such outstanding former stars as Jim and Vern Heiser, Gaylord Bucher, Barney Adams, Bud Zeigler, Dan Stehle, Bill Pierce, Gene Brandon, Bill Distl and Joe Majoy.

The high school boys did themselves credit for holding this assemblage of stars to four touchdowns.

Not a single regular of last season's team was in Murphy's lineup, and Mike Horvath, Bill Russell, Grover Swoyer and Joe Bush were the only players seeing action who were used last year.

The 1938 candidates threatened to score only twice. Both scoring opportunities were offered by the ex-Tygers' fumbles.

A lengthy run by Hallabrin and his pass to Stehle accounted for the first of four touchdowns for winners in the opening period. Hallabrin added the point.

Score on Kickoff.

The second score came on the kickoff in the second half when Hallabrin handed the ball to Distl, who raced about 90 yards down the sidelines without a hand being laid on him.

In the third period, Hallabrin threw to Brandon for a touchdown, and the All-Ohioan personally escorted the ball over the goal line on a 10-yard plunge for the final score.

Outstanding for the Tygers in the whipping was Al Schwaner, who did all of the kicking and passing, not to mention the ball carrying.

Seeks Mansfield For Vacant Berth

GALION — (AP) — Ohio State league officials today expressed hope that Mansfield, winner of the Ohio State Baseball league championship last year, could be induced to enter a team in the league again this season. Galion withdrew a bid for a franchise at a league meeting here.

1888-1938 50 Years Of U. S. Golf

By GARDNER SOULE

BECAUSE there were no public links, and because the cost of maintaining private links had mounted rapidly, golf in 1895 was a rich man's game. In keeping, many players "dressed"—wearing scarlet melton coats with knickers, gaiters and plaid hose. But the red coats were only a passing fad.

Milnar To Hurl

Fine Relief Job Earns Lefty Starting Role Against Senators Today.

WASHINGTON — Al Milnar, product of Cleveland sandlot ranks, and Wes Ferrell were the rival hurlers today as the Cleveland Indians opened their first eastern tour of the season against the Senators.

Bob Feller was expected to pitch his fourth game for the Tribe, but Manager Oscar Vitt revised his plans to give the 19-year-old star an added day's rest.

Vitt said Milnar's performance as a relief pitcher against Detroit Sunday prompted him to give the youth his first starting chance of the season.

Trip Tells Tale.

Whether the Indians will make a real bid for the American league pennant may be determined during the club's current swing through the east. This territory long has been the burial ground of Cleveland flag hopes. The Tribe is scheduled for three games here, two at Philadelphia, three at Boston and two against their ancient Nemesis, the New York Yankees, before they return home.

Cleveland maintained its place at the head of the procession yesterday when it mauled the Detroit Tigers 11 to 3.

Johnny Allen, making his first start since he was fined last week for an argument with an umpire, was in the box for Cleveland and breezed to an easy victory. Allen gave up only seven hits. The Tigers scored once in the fifth and twice in the eighth.

Cleveland had one big inning, the fourth, that assured it of the decision. In this round the Indians scored 10 times. Included in the fourth inning barrage of hits were a home run by Earl Averill and doubles by Allen, Jeff Heath and Ken Keltner.

Obtain 13 Hits.

The Indians nicked Jake Wade, Alton Benton, Harry Eisentat and Davis for 13 hits. Every man in the tribe lineup except Sammy Hale secured at least one safety.

Six Teams Set For A League

News-Journal Golfers to Open Season May 23.

Six teams will fight it out for the championship in the News-Journal Class A golf league which officially gets under way Monday, May 23, at Possum Run.

The league was reorganized at a meeting at Possum Run club house last night. V. H. Oberlander, circuit president, said today that team personnels will be announced followang another meeting next Monday.

Heading the list is the Goldsmith Clothiers, defending champions. The other clubs which will be back this year are Siegenthaler Shoes, Yuncker Sports and the Richland Printing.

Washington, Detroit Big Surprises In Big Leagues

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

WHILE the next couple of weeks of intersectional scrapping may change the picture, two of the biggest surprises so far in the major league season are the Washington Senators—or Nationals if you prefer—and Detroit Tigers.

Washington opens its first home stand against the western clubs of the American league today in second place and Detroit starts east tied with the St. Louis Browns for sixth. That reverses the way they were picked in the Associated Press spring poll.

The Senators, of course, have profited greatly by the weakness of the Philadelphia Athletics, winning four out of five from them, but Washington's half-game margin over the Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees can't be laughed off.

The Senators gave the Yanks a whale of a tussle yesterday before going down 3-2 and they may make trouble for Cleveland when the league-leading Indians invade the capital today. After the Yanks revised batting order, with Lou Gehrig down in sixth place, had hopped on Jimmy Deshong for a 3-0 lead, the Senators started a comeback that drove Monte Pearson to cover and filled the bases in the eighth before Johnny Murphy checked the threat.

Joe DiMaggio's second homer in two day's was the big Yankee blow, but it was Joe's error, too, that gave the Nats their second run.

Detroit's main difficulty has been too much Cleveland, as the Tigers have lost five out of six to Oscar Vitt's mighty men.

Rookie Woodrow Davis was the only one who could check the Tribe yesterday and he didn't come in until a ten-run uprising in the fourth had ruined any faint hope of victory. While Johnny Allen held the Detroiters to seven blows, the Indians pounded Jake Wade, Harry Eisenstat and Al Benton for nine in their one big inning.

The Giants, invincible against the eastern clubs of the National league, polished off Brooklyn for the sixth time, 7 to 4. A combination of six-hit flinging by Cliff Melton and homers by Jimmy Ripple, Hank Leiber and Joe Moore proved too much for the Dodgers.

Cincinnati's Reds, who tackle the champions next, tuned up with their third straight triumph over Pittsburgh, 8 to 6. Two homers by Ival Goodman paced the Reds and incidentally, gave Goodman the big league lead in four-base swatting.

The St. Louis Cardinals with Joe Medwick leading a typical "Gas House" uprising, belted over the Chicago Cubs, 6 to 3, while Boston's Red Sox routed the Athletics, 13 to 1 in the other big league games. The Bees and Phillies and White Sox and Browns took the day off.

After homers, two by Ripper Collins and one by Frank Demaree, twice had given the Cubs the lead, the Cards won out with four runs in the eighth, when Medwick hit for the circuit. The Red Sockers got all their runs off Harry Kelley. Lee Smith and Al Williams in the first three frames while Footsie Marcum came through with a seven hitter.

Texas Stars Once Performed In Relays

Sampson, Sahling Members of Teachers' Team That Stole Show In Pennsylvania Show.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

TWO former Mansfield Relays contestants—Kenneth Sampson and Jack Sahling of Toledo Scott—were members of that crack North Texas State Teachers' college track team that literally stole the Penn Relays' show . . . . Mental orchids to "Pop" Garver and George Allarding for the nifty boxing tournament they're staging for the inmates at O. S. R. . . . One can't help but notice the improvements at the Possum Run course, especially the course markers.

Frank Harpster and the other members of the Ohio theater are pretty proud of that trophy that is a symbol of their bowling prowess . . . That Swoyer listed as a member of The News-Journal team in the Class B. golf league is Grover E., pastor of the First Lutheran church, and quite a shotmaker, too . . . This marks the poorest track season for Harry Mehock, but his Mansfield high athletes have been showing gradual improvement. They might be pretty tough by the time the district eliminations come around.

What Ever Happened to 'Red' Thomas?

WONDER whatever happened to "Red" Thomas, who once twirled for the Delano club? Haven't heard much about "Honeyboy" Jones lately. "Honeyboy" was sought for Alabama Kid for Tim Nolan's recent flop, but the former Mansfielder's manager declined, probably for purse reasons. . . . No amateur mitt card in this vicinity is complete without the McKinley boys of Ashland. The brothers top an approaching Wooster promotion. And Ernie, one of the finest mitt slingers in this part of the state, is training for his bout by trying out as a miler on the Ashland high track team.

JOHNNY ALLEN

Did you notice that none of the marks compiled in the Ohio Wesleyan Relays even threatened the feats of the Mansfield Relays performers . . . Babe Triscaro, the old Cleveland puncher, is in the hospital for repairs. He came out second best in a collision with an automobile . . . Umpire Bill McGowan and the Indians are 'feuding' . . . They say Johnny Allen is feeling the sting of all that Bobby Feller publicity.

Working out in a New York gym, Lou smashed a punching bag so hard that it came loose from its moorings, the heavy chain that held it striking him on the head and putting him down for the count. Stagehand In Derby Trial

Faces Final Test in Mile Run Today.

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(U.P.)—Stagehand returns to competition today in the derby trial—a one-mile race which may answer many questions regarding the 64th running of the Kentucky derby Saturday.

Opposed to the Maxwell Howard colt, winner of the Rich Santa Anita derby and Santa Anita handicap last winter, will be nine other horses nominated for the Blue Grass classic.

Stagehand, however, fill be the "big horse" today in his first outing since he whipped Seabiscuit by a nose and took the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap purse. If he wins with Jackie Westrope up, he will be the favorite when the mutuel windows open Saturday. If he has a tough time of it, winning by a shade or losing, then Fighting Fox, son of Gallant Fox and now a co-favorite, will become the top-ranked horse for the derby.

Also entered today are The Chief, Stagehand's stablemate; Wise Fox, Redbreast, Wise Barrister, Lawrin, Mountain Ridge, Elooto, Co-Sport and Last Message. Upon their showing today will depend whether some of these horses will start Saturday.

The Chief, winner over Mountain Ridge and Lawrin Saturday in the Daniel Boone purse, may not start today but he will be a certain runner in the derby. Last Message, a filly, and Wise Barrister are certain not to go in the derby unless they perform well today.

HI-SPEEDS, ONTARIO VIE IN PRACTICE GAME

The Mansfield Hi-Speeds, who in their debut last Sunday defeated the touted Sandusky Amburns, will meet Ontario high's baseball club in a practice game at Ontario at 6 p. m. Thursday.

A practice session will be held by the Hi-Speed players at league park at 6 p. m. today.

Mansfield Thin-Clads Close Season at Stadium Saturday

Hosts to Sandusky In Next to Last Dual Meet on Mehockmen's Schedule This Spring.

SATURDAY will mark the final appearance of the Mansfield high school track and field athletes at their home layout.

Coach Harry Mehock's Red Streaks engage Sandusky in a dual meet at Stadium field Saturday, and close their regular season against Akron Garfield in the "Rubber City" the following week.

Mansfield's other two appearances will be made in the district meet to be held in Fremont and the state finals in Columbus.

The number of participants Mansfield will send to Columbus depends on how many are qualified in the district elimination.

Sees Improvement.

Beaten in three of their four dual meets this season, Mehock is looking forward to an improved showing from his Streaks Saturday.

The Mehockmen showed up stronger than any time this season last week when they compiled 15 points less than Erie, Pa., Strong Vincent in a dual meet there. The Erie school is the defending Pennsylvania champion.

EARLY BUYING LIFTS SHAKY LIST LEADERS

Brokers Attribute Performance to Belief Selling Has Exhausted Itself.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Buying came into the stock market today and lifted recently shaky leaders fractions to a point or more.

As in previous sessions volume was insignificant. Advances were well maintained near the second hour.

Brokers attributed the better performance of the list mainly to the belief of trading forces selling had about exhausted itself and that at least a temporary upturn was due.

Bonds and commodities were uneven. A sharp break in the French franc in terms of the dollar reflected the latest decree of the Daladier government boosting taxes substantially.

Market observers noted forecasts of merchandising company officials that sales comparisons for the current month may reflect a somewhat less favorable showing than during March and April. Also it was believed retail prices would average about 5 per cent under the 1937 rate.

Summarization of statements of 25 iron and steel companies reporting for the first quarter indicated a net loss of only $4,492,768.

BAR PROPOSES AMENDMENT TO PROBATE CODE

Calls for Out of County Trust Companies to Put Up Bond, Hire Local Counsel.

The Richland County Bar association prepared today to ask the support of the Ohio Bar association in obtaining an amendment to the state probate code requiring out-of-the county trust companies acting as trustees and administrators for estates to provide bond covering the assets of the estates and to employ local counsel to handle probate matters.

Already approved by the regional bar association, including 12 counties in northcentral Ohio, the resolution will be submitted to the state bar group at a meeting at Cleveland. If approved there it will go to the state legislature with a request for passage.

Atty. R. E. Hutchison, president of the Richland association, explained that the amendment would eliminate losses to estates through financial failure of trustee institutions. It would also make it more convenient for county probate courts to administer estates by requiring the trustee to employ an attorney in the county where the estate is located instead of in a distant city.

Provides Additional Bond.

Under the present set-up, he said, trust companies may give bond for $100,000 to the state, which covers any number of trustee appointments and estates of any size. No local bond is required in the county where the appointment is made.

The proposed amendment would require the trustee or administrator to give additional bond, the amount depending on the size of the estate.

In emphasizing the protective feature of the proposed amendment, Atty. Hutchison cited the cases of the Union Trust and Guardian Trust companies at Cleveland which failed several years ago resulting in considerable losses for a number of estates outside Cuyahoga county.

The county bar's resolution was drawn up by a committee headed by Atty. William F. Black, chairman, and including Judge C. H. Huston, C. H. Workman, J. W. Galbraith, Frank Long of Shelby, J. F. Kramer, J. H. Gongwer, and Marshall C. Moore.

BUSY SESSION CONFRONTS CITY DADS TONIGHT

Two Bond Ordinances and Other Legislation Awaiting Council Action.

With two bond ordinances up for approval and numerous pieces of minor legislation on file, city council was headed towards one of the largest sessions of the year tonight.

With a few minor changes, suggested by Cleveland bond counsel, the $64,000 bond ordinance, designed to finaace the proposed Woodland water project, will go before council for its second reading.

The ordinance which was given its first reading two weeks ago, calls for the issuance of $64,000 in waterworks mortgage revenue bonds to be retired over a period of eight years.

Council will also be asked to approve the issuance of $30,000 in general bonds within the 10-mill limitation to provide funds for developing the city's park system, storm sewers extensions, and three separate improvements in the fire department, one of them being the purchase of a new piece of apparatus

Provisions Of Bill.

The ordinance sets up $6,000 for park improvements, $8,500 for a new fire department pumper, another $1,500 for fire plugs and $5,000 for improving the fire and police signal system.

In the meantime Mayor Claude M. Hunter announced that Fred A. Waring, chief engineer for the state department of health, had advised him that he would appear before city council tonight to explain the state board's refusal to approve plans for a sanitary sewer on Bernard avenue and Coleman road.

Hunter said the plans had been turned down by the state department because the city had no comprehensive outline of the municipal sanitary sewer system.

He said that City Engineer W. C Statler informed him that sanitary sewer maps were on file in the engineering department and that he had asked Waring to come to Mansfield to look over the files and make his report to council.

At the same time A. M. Mock, city designing engineer, who has been drafting a new city-wide plan for sanitary sewer development said he would prevent a progress report to council along with the state department's report.

3 In Race, G.O.P. 'Harmony' Group Faces New Task

The G. O. P. "harmony" committee had another job on its hands today with a third candidate seeking the post of Republican state committeeman from the 17th congressional district.

While it had been reported that Harvey G. Hammond of Knox county, who has held the office for the past six years would not run for re-election, dispatches from Mt. Vernon said that Hammond would oppose Earl A. McFarland, former mayor, and Roy B. Gardner, both of Mansfield.

Hammond resigned as chairman of both the Knox county Republican central and executive committees. Chester Ward of Mt. Vernon was named as his successor.

The Richland county committee, which has never had a member on the state G. O. P. committee, endorsed McFarland for the position two months ago and said it was promised the support of the other five counties in the district

Gardner's petition was filed with the county board of elections 10 days ago, after which the county Republican central committee set up two five-man "harmony" committees to act as arbitrators and head off any threatened rift in the ranks of the party.

Senate Foes Admit Expansion Measure Will Pass.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Senate opponents of the administration's billion-dollar naval expansion bill, rechecking their strength as the senate approached a vote, agreed today they had virtually no chance of defeating the administration measure

Senator Nye (R-ND), indicated the foes would vote "no" only as a matter of course, then resume the battle when appropriation measures are considered

The expansion bill, approved by the house, authorizes construction of 46 warships, 950 planes and 26 auxiliary ships, but none can be started until congress actually appropriates funds

REHDER RENEWS PLEA FOR T. B. HOME IN COUNTY

Report to Advisory Council Shows Infant Death Rate Highest in 5 Years.

For the second time within a month, Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner, today had recommended the establishment of a convalescent home for tuberculosis patients in Richland county.

The recommendations were made in the annual report of the health department submitted to the Richland county district advisory council at their annual meeting yesterday.

"One problem in tuberculosis control that is deserving of serious consideration arises from that group of diagnosed cases in which tuberculosis has made such inroads that arresting of the process is no longer possible," Dr. Rehder said in his report.

He asserted that the time was near at hand when the county must enter some program whereby tuberculosis care will be provided so that a well-balanced control of the disease might be put into operation.

He said that too few homes offer the opportunity for proper isolation and care of tuberculosis patients and that with sanitarium costs so great, that the county can provide only a limited number of beds.

Number Examined Doubled.

His report showed that nearly twice as many persons were examined in tuberculosis clinics in the county last year as there were in 1936 In 1937 the clinics handled a total of 226 cases while the number diagnosed in 1936 was 137, Dr. Rehder said. Of the total, there were 59 positive cases, of which 32 were not in the communicable stage, while the other 27 suspects were in the advanced stage of the disease.

The report also showed that the death rate was one of the lowest recorded in the county in the past five years, while the infant mortality rate was the righest over the same period. The birth rate of 11 0 per thousand population was identical as that of 1936.

The death rate, which Dr Rehder said was far below the national figure, was 9 14 per thousand population in 1937 as compared with the 11 0 per thousand in 1936. The infant mortality rate jumped from 50 0 per thousand population in 1936 to 52 4 per thousand in 1937.

Dr. Rehder said that the number of communicable diseases listed in the county in 1937, while slightly in excess to the number recorded in 1936, was one of the lowest in the past five years. The greatest increase was shown in whooping cough, where 119 cases were reported in 1937 as compared to only 19 for the year previous.

The report showed that 197 cases of communicable diseases were reported during the year while there were 120 in 1936, and more than 500 during 1932.

The commissioner added that there were 2,410 visits to vernerial clinics for diagnosis and treatment last year, an increase of nearly 10 times the number of visits recorded in 1930.

At the meeting of the district advisory council yesterday, Mayor J. F. Bumpus of Butler was elected to a five-year term on the Richland county health board to succeed W. C. Urich, R. D. 2, Shiloh, whose term expired on May 1. The group also elected Lewis Rinehart, R. D. 1, Galion, to fill the unexpired term of E. J. Line, R. D. 1, Galion, who moved from the health district. His term expires in 1940.

Other members of the board are John A. Tucker, Lucas; Dr. J. P. Stober, Lexington; C. C. Mellick, R. D. 2, Greenwich.

COUNTY SKIPPED IN ROAD CASH

U. S. Allots $7,250,000 for Highway Work But Richland Gets Nothing.

Although the state highway department today received approval from Washington on 53 road projects in Ohio, involving expenditures of $7,250,000, Richland county was not included in the list.

The approved projects, for which the state and federal governments will provide funds in equal shares, represent the first portion of the 1939 federal aid highway program. The program for the year calls for construction costing $9,200,000.

Included in the projects already approved is a .475 of a mile section at Round lake in Ashland and Holmes county, to be re-located and paved at an estimated cost of $60,000.

Another section, approximately three-fourths mile long at the intersection of routes 20 and 4 in Huron county, will be paved at a cost of $120,000. A larger project calls for construction of 4 85 miles of U. S. route 20 at the Woodville corporation line in Wood and Sandusky counties at an estimated cost of $310,000.

MARION BURIES SLAIN COUPLE

Farm Hand Killer Waits in Jail, Anxious 'To Get It Over With' Quickly.

(By International News Service)

MARION, O.—Mr. and Mrs. Homer T. Myers, who were found brutally murdered in their burning farm home near here Saturday night, were to be buried today while their confessed slayer, 48-year-old Harvey L. Roush, sulked in a jail cell wanting to get "the whole thing over as soon as possible."

Funeral services for the Myers were to be held in the Marion Calvary Evangelical church of which they both were members.

Roush told Marion County Prosecutor Paul D. Michael that he shot and beat the pair to death because he owed Myers $1,400 on a note, Michael said.

The slayer accosted Myers in the latter's farm home on route 23 late Saturday night and told him that he wanted to pay the note After Myers wrote "paid in full" across the face of the note, Roush shot him When Mrs. Myers hurried into the room she was shot and clubbed.

Roush sprinkled gasoline around the rooms and set fire to the house in an effort to conceal the crime. He was taken into custody late Sunday and confessed after several hours of grilling.

PIONEER PARADE WITNESSED BY RECORD CROWD

Eight high schools and Ashland college sent bands. In addition, the Mansfield high school girls' drum corps and the Earl McVey post, American Legion, drum corps provided snappy marching rhythm for the parade.

There were old automobiles of the high wheel, chain drive days, operating under their own power. Horse-drawn carriages and an old-fashioned coach mingled with the modern automobiles and trucks. Schools entered educational floats, showing the school rooms of pioneer days and picture stories of the significance of the Ordinance of 1787. Boys' and girls' farm clubs joined in the march, and dozens of business firms contributed floats or advertising units.

Next to the parade in significance in the observance yesterday was the pageant presented in the "Caravan theater" at the Richland county fairgrounds Thousands saw the spectacle of the establishing of the new Ohio country and the re-enactment of events that prepared the way for opening of the middle west.

8 Episodes In Pageant.

The pageant was presented in eight episodes by a company of 38 Federal players who came to the city with the ox team caravan.

Dressed in the spectacular costumes of colonial days, the players gave dramatic stories of the founding of the Northwest Territory—that part of the country to the north and west of the Ohio river and now comprising five states and a part of a sixth.

Such statesmen and soldiers as George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, George Rogers Clark, Gov. Arthur St Clair, Gen. Rufus Putnam and Manassah Cutler came onto the stage to live again.

Opening with the Albany convention, the real beginning of preparations for the westward movement, the story ended nearly two hours later with a scene at Marietta after the Ohio company had set up homes on the banks of the Muskingum and Ohio rivers.

The pageant was presented on a stage across the race track from the grand stand. Voices of the players were carried to the huge audience through a public address system An orchestra directed by Sigurd Jorgenson of the Mansfield schools music department, provided music for some of the scenes. The Senior high school band played in the grandstand before the pageant.

In Mt. Vernon Today.

Members of the visiting Pioneer caravan were feted before the pageant at a dinner at the First M. E. church.

The caravan stayed in the city overnight and today left for Mt. Vernon for a parade and pageant there this afternoon and tonight. After a swing into southern Ohio the Pioneer company will go west into Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin, returning through southern Ohio to Marietta in October.

Described as one of the most successful celebrations ever held in Mansfield, the observance here was planned under the direction of John Correll, general chairman of the committee. Even the weather was on the side of the celebration, bright sunshine and summer temperatures prevailing during the Sunday and Monday afternoon celebrations, while last night at the fairgrounds the weather was warm enough that most of the audiences left coats at home.

Floats, bands and other participants in the parade were:

First Division.

Churches and Schools, Colors and guard, McVey Post No. 16, American Legion, official cars, Mansfield High school band and drum corps. five school floats. Madison High school band, two school floats, Ministerial association. Freedom of the Press float, St. Peter's school float, Mansfield Study club, American Association of University Women, Country Day school float, high school hay wagon float.

CONSIDERS SUIT

Jury Hears Widow's Action for Industrial Compensation.

The Richland county petit jury today considered a suit filed by Mrs. Annie Lucas, Mansfield, who seeks industrial compensation for the death of her husband, Henry Lucas, more than four years ago, allegedly as the result of an accident at the Humphryes Manufacturing company. Mrs. Lucas brought the action against the state industrial commission after it disallowed her claim, contending that her husband's death was not the result of his injury.

The county jury yesterday returned a directed verdict for the industrial commission in a suit brought by Mrs. Violet Murst, Mansfield, asking compensation for the death of her husband, William F. Murst five years ago.

Mrs. Murst had contended that her husband's death was the result of a foot injury he suffered in 1932 while employed by the Mansfield Vitreous Enameling company. The Industrial commission disallowed her claim last November.

Drums rolled, just like they did in the days of the Revolutionary war, and keeping pace were the modern movie cameras that whirred as fans took colored shots as the parade went by.

Pioneer Troop 1 of the Mansfield Boy Scouts put on a back-to-nature skit in trail-blazing costumes but the beans they were cooking over that real log fire, came out of tin cans that didn't even exist when the first caravan came through the Northwest Territory.

Cling From Windows.

The crowd stood patiently, three and four deep along the line of march . . . They hung from windows, tops of buildings, fire escapes and step-ladders brought out for the purpose.

They giggled at the ancient two-seater chugging down the street and at the be-goggled, duster clad occupants . . . They said "how cute" when the Country Day School float went by with its covered-wagon load of little girls in sunbonnets. They pointed out the twins in the cradle of the elementary school float, made to look like a river barge And they nodded their heads in approval when Hedges school children went by on a truck-mounted replica of the old-fashioned school room, complete to dunce and hickory sticks, close to the teacher's hand.

It took a band, though, to make them cheer. Stepping high and wide, and blowing on their bugles for all they were worth, the Crestline High School band in their bright blue uniforms and plumed hats, really "brought down the house"

Probably the hardest working group, both in the opening of the Northwest Territory and in the parade yesterday, were the railroad crew, depicted by members of the Flower of Italy society.

Not only did they actually drive spikes in the railroad ties, but they pulled them out again with crowbars so they could have a continuous process as the truck rolled along the street.

Indians—the original Americans—were in the parade by the dozens. Big braves, little papooses and blanket-wrapped squaws.

But, to show graphically how the country has spread out and how truly it is a "melting pot," there were representatives in costume of almost every nationality in the world.

CHAIR 'MARCH' 24 HOURS AWAY

Mrs. Hahn Clings to Hope Gov. Davey Will Save Her With Zero Hour Order.

The correspondence in the files shows letters pleading for aid for condemned men. But none for her. It is rather pitiful."

Legal authorities pointed out that if Mrs. Hahn's petition for an appeal to the United States supreme court is allowed her execution would be put off indefinitely. It would take 30 days to make a record of the trial for the U. S. supreme court.

By that time the U. S. supreme court would be on vacation and would not get a chance to review the case before the first week in October.

If Justice Weygandt does not allow the petition for appeal today, it is the intention of Mrs. Hahn s counsel to go to Hugo Black or some other justice of the United States supreme court in a frantic last-minute effort to stay the execution. Any justice of the U. S. supreme court could grant a delay.

Mrs. Hahn's counsel is understood to be prepared to cite a particular part of Prosecutor Outcalt's closing address to the jury as "prejudicial." The records show that Outcalt said:

"Ladies and Gentlemen· In the four corners of this courtroom there stand four dead men—and from them four corners of this room bony fingers point at her and they say to you, 'That woman poisoned me. That woman made my last moments an agony. That woman tortured me with the tortures of the damned."

The testimony fails to show, however, that the defense took any exception to this statements at the trial.

AGENTS NAMED

State Acts to Spur Benefit Payment Distribution.

J. B. Shumaker, Upper Sandusky, today was assigned as field agent to expedite preparations for the distribution of workmen's benefits in Richland, Crawford, Wyandot and Marion counties, Associated Press dispatch reported today from Columbus.

Assignment was made by Charles S. Leasure, chairman of the Ohio Unemployment Compensation commission.

Leasure said that the compensation act now affects 45,000 employers and provides protection for 1,500,000 workers in Ohio. First benefits become available Jan. 1, 1939.

Others among the 82 field agents appointed are Ernest J. McConnell of Orville and Andrew L. Dudash, North Industry for Ashland, Wayne, and Stark counties; Fred Ashman of Coshocton and Kenneth Debolt, Centerburg for Knox, Licking, Holmes and Coshocton counties.

Now He Can Go Back to Work on Model Locomotive That Is Made to Really Run.

John Sulzer is happy that the Northwest Territory celebration is over.

For it means that the old-time machinist can get back to work on his scale model locomotive which was a part of a display in a downtown store window symbolizing the progress made in transportation in the last 150 years.

For days Sulzer carried the 24-inch model to the store every morning and then took it home with him again in the evening. But last night, the wiry little mechanic tucked his prize under his arm and headed for his workshop at 29 Chestnut street.

It'll be another year before the model is completed because there is going to be a tender with a gasoline tank to the miniature boiler with its tiny flues can be automatically stoked.

Modeled After Flyer.

Already representing 21 months of patience and skill, the builder has patterned the model after the Pennsylvania's crack Red Arrow flyers.

The working model, 1-25th the size of a real locomotive, really runs, but instead of steam, its wheels turn under compressed air.

The engine represents the finest precision workmanship — there's not even a bolt missing and every piece has been turned out on Sulzer's workshop lathe.

The miniature is constructed of cold rolled steel and brass. The boiler is made up of 18 tiny flues and there are counter-balanced drive wheels and all the shafts and pins are built with the same fine precision that Sulzer inherited from his Swiss watchmaker ancestors.

Even the small pistons in the steam cylinder have been tooled to scale and are equipped with rings just like an auto.

An Example of Patience, Skill

For nearly two years now, John Sulzer, 29 Chestnut street, has been working on the 24-inch model locomotive that he is shown holding above. An outstanding example of fine workmanship, the tiny engine can actually be operated by compressed air. Every part is an exact copy of the real engine from which it is patterned.

juror, who told the attorney general his firm had reduced its sales force and now required his full time. He is the fourth juror to be replaced since the original panel was charged last November.

The attorney general declared after the first day of hearing witnesses that he is convinced there were violations of the civil service laws in the collection of campaign contributions and added:

"There is no doubt about it."

Duffy said each solicitation is a separate offense under the law and that the penalty upon conviction for each offense is from $50 to $500 fine and, or, six months in jail.

The grand jury, he said, will not make a report until the probe is concluded "in about three weeks."

Asked if any of the contributions studied so far were made by check, the attorney general replied:

"I don't want to answer that."

Blue Sunoco Wins again ...in giant poll of 24,744 new car owners

Capitals, including Albany, Trenton, Springfield and Lansing, sent in their ballots, also industrial centers, such as Toledo, Newark, Danbury and Wilmington, took part in this survey.

High Geared BLUE SUNOCO THE ONLY TRUE BLUE MOTOR FUEL

FIRST CHOICE IN LANDSLIDE VOTE IN 140 CITIES

BLUE SUNOCO USERS PREFER IT FOR:

- QUICK STARTING
- FAST ACCELERATION
- KNOCKLESS QUALITIES
- POWER ON HILLS
- LONG MILEAGE

Here's a story of motor fuel superiority . . . told, not by its manufacturer, but by the most critical of its users:—owners of new cars with high-compression engines. These experienced drivers ranked Blue Sunoco first by 57.5% more votes than the next highest on the list . . . gave it 95% as many votes as the next two gasolines put together. Certainly facts like these should convince you that High Geared Blue Sunoco is the motor fuel for your car . . . because:—since new cars require a better gasoline to perform satisfactorily, such a gasoline will obviously perform with at least equal satisfaction in older cars.

This survey was conducted by an independent organization in New York, Rhode Island, Conn., Mass., Penna., Delaware, New Jersey, Maryland, West Va., Mich and Ohio The replies received were submitted to Lybrand, Ross Brothers and Montgomery, certified public accountants, who prepared the above tabulation therefrom.

Big cities like Detroit, Philadelphia, Boston, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Rochester and Buffalo were included in this vote.

COLOR HARMONY ESSENTIAL FOR HOME BEAUTY

Paint Brush Applied to Gates, Garages, Fences Helps to Beautify Surroundings.

NEW YORK—Tiny back yard gardens are beginning to bloom within the narrow limits of cities and, in the suburbs, more pretentious ones. Their bright colors come not only from the variegated blooms but also clever paint schemes for fences, trellises and garages.

Judiciously used, the paint brush makes its own contribution to gardening as well as interior decoration. Departing from the usual green—which, when used, is lighter than in other years, blending closely with the foliage—some householders are setting off their shrubbery and climbing vines with gay, flower-like colors: marigold orange, hydrangea blue, tulip red and daffodil yellow.

With the colonial style houses so much in favor, low white painted picket fences always seem appropriate. You see other colors, too, however: blue, ranging from a medium clear shade to an intense purplish-blue; and a soft, deep red.

Two-Color Effects.

Two-color effects are cheerful: white, accented with the same color used for the house shutters, for example. Or the gate is painted a bright color in contrast with the white fence, giving added distinction to the entrance—especially if it has a trellis arbor over it. Whatever colors are chosen, they follow the color scheme of the house exterior.

Light spring green is a favorite for trellises, as is white, of course. But if a close harmony with the house is desired, blue, dull reds and even soft yellows are effectively employed.

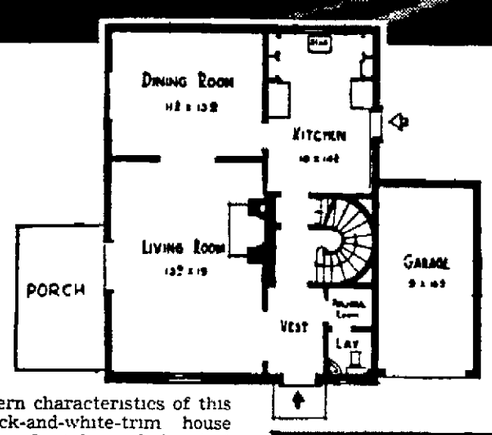
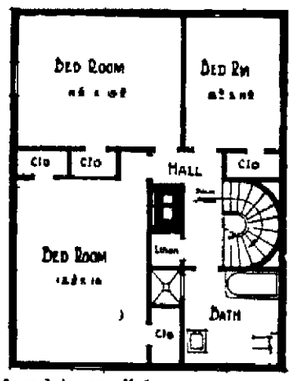
Modernized Colonial Plan





Modern characteristics of this red-brick-and-white-trim house in colonial style include steel casement windows and an adjoining garage.

Seven rooms are conveniently arranged under a single roof in an economical, space - saving plan. There are many decorative and serviceable features. The powder room and lavatory off the entrance hall are not often found in small homes.

There are also a well-planned kitchen with efficient modern equipment, an automatic oil burner, rock wool insulation in the walls and a slate roof.

Mott Brothers built this house which was selected by The American Home, 444 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

Care should be exercised in cleaning out old fashioned lead pipes. Wire should not be used to remove waste as it may easily puncture the piping.

STYLES AND TYPES OF ROOFING OFFER BUILDER BIG SELECTION

No other item in construction offers a wider range of materials than the roof of a house. Most frequently encountered types are of paper, impregnated; state-covered shingles in strips or in single units; wood shingles, composition shingles, cement tiles, terra-cotta tiles, metal shingles, sheet metal, and slate.

In building a new house, the type of covering is selected and the roof structure built accordingly. A deck or sheating is usually required. To this is fastened the covering, but in some sections, particularly those near the sea, it may be advisable to lay wood shingles over shingle lath. The underside of the shingles need to "breathe" on account of the excessive moisture in the air, or they may rot quickly.

With all types, save the paper and wood shingles, heavy roofing felt should be placed over the decking before covering is put on.

When a roof is renewed the matter of weight of the material selected must be given careful study. If the old roof is of wood shingles, it is often possible to cover it without removing the old shingles, but if a heavy material, such as slate, is used, the frame must be checked to see if it will carry the added weight in safety.

SCREEN PORCH

For the coming summer's comfort, why not add a screen orch to your home? Any bank will tell you how to obtain funds under the property improvement credit plan of the Federal Housing administration, and a screen porch will make your home vastly more livable. For such a porch, a floor painted deep, bright blue with a stenciled design in either red or white, would make an attractive background for white metal furniture. The latter might consist of a round table and four chairs.

RIGID SCHOOL BUS RULES SET UP BY STATE

Contract Holders Notified of 58 Requirements Designed to Protect Rural Pupils.

A list of 58 school bus requirements set up by the state department of education had been distributed today to each bus contract holder and board of education clerk in the county by Boyd Robinson, county superintendent of schools.

The rigid regulations, designed as a protective measure for rural pupils who are transported in buses, will require replacement of a few buses in the county and improvements on a number of them before the next school term opens, it was said.

Buses which transport five or more pupils are affected by the regulations. In some cases where specific regulations do not apply to a bus or community, the state director of education may make exemptions.

All-Steel Bodies Required.

Included in the list are requirements for all-steel bodies for buses, a clear aisle 10 inches wide running the entire length of the bus, an over-all body width of not more than 96 inches, at least 23 inches between forward-facing seats, an individual driver's seat protected by a guard rail at the rear, and black lettering on the bus which can be read from a distance of 200 feet.

A uniform orange color for the roof, body and cowl of all school buses is required, and the vehicles must have four-wheel equalized service brakes that will stop the loaded bus within 85 feet at a speed of 30 miles an hour.

Coil spring cushioned seats, fastened securely, must be provided, and backs of the seats must be padded.

The regulations require adequate vents to prevent the collection of gas fumes in the bus, and vehicles with a seating capacity of more than 20 pupils must be equipped with dual rear wheels.

It's Odd

But It's Science.

MADISON, Wis.—A person with eyes closed always goes in circles.

He does so whether walking, running, driving an auto, or flying a plane. Blindfolded animals spiral. Blindfolded birds do, too.

Scientists have been trying to discover why, because the spiraling is likely to be in a fixed direction, either to left or right.

They have thought it due to some fundamental principle of nature.

For they found the same tendency to spiral in plants. Although unable to move the plant structures showed a right or left twist in cells. Even bacteria show a like spiraling. Their colonies sometimes grow in spirals.

The reason for the spiraling of cells in plants and animals has been found at the University of Wisconsin by Dr. James L Roberts. The twist is due to growth in width. A cell widens at the same time it elongates.

In widening, the growth proceeds mainly in one direction—like the hands turning about the face of a clock. This direction usually is not haphazard. A majority of the cells appear to be clock-like in the same direction. This may be either right or left.

TRANSIENT TO FACE CHARGES

Man Picked Up In Shelby; Fingerprints Taken To S. C.

John Aclin, 35, a transient, who has been held in the Shelby and Richland county jails for the past three weeks, was on his way to Greenville, S. C. today to face charges of safe-blowing and breaking and entering.

Aclin was in the custody of Deputy Sheriff I. P. Kellett of Greenville county who came to Mansfield after him yesterday.

Chief of Police Leroy Coffey's custom of fingerprinting all transients who stay overnight at the Shelby jail resulted in Aclin's arrest when he came back a second time to ask for lodging. In a three weeks' interval between Aclin's visits in Shelby his fingerprints had been sent to Washington and identified as those of the South Carolina fugitive.

Mansfield's Successful Celebration.

FORWARD-LOOKING MANSFIELD yesterday reverted to thoughts of the past, not only as a tribute to the courageous pioneers who hewed a city out of a wilderness, but also to find inspiration for the future.

Celebration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the opening of the Northwest territory brought to Mansfield the largest crowd in the city's history and the most impressive street parade within the memory of oldest residents.

There were also the commemorative ceremonies at the old blockhouse in South park Sunday afternoon; the Monday afternoon assemblage in Central park; the Pioneer dinner and the pageant last evening—all centering attention on events of early history in this community and bringing to mind names that deserve being carried to successive generations.

Few who did not come into actual contact with some phase of the work required in preparation for this celebration will have any appreciation of the immensity of the task and of the vast number of details involved in preparing and carrying through plans for the parade and for the various features of Sunday and Monday programs.

In addition to actual participants in the parade, the work of literally hundreds of persons went into the designing and decorating of floats and other units in the long procession—and in all of it there could be detected evidence of the capable leadership and direction essential to successful culmination of any community project.

The coming of the cavalcade of "pioneers," the parade, the window displays of relics of the past—all of these gave opportunity for contrasting the "conveniences" of early days with those of the present day and could scarcely have failed to impress even young children with the tremendous advancement that has been made in little more than a century.

From ox carts to automobiles and airplanes in transportation; from tallow dips to electricity for lighting; from postriders to radio for communication; from the daguerreotype to wire photography; from the "spring house" to electrical refrigeration; from one-room remote rural schools to spacious modern buildings readily accessible to all children—to mention only a few of the changes that have come in such a little while—as compared with the additional centuries in which people of other countries have had opportunity to progress.

What are today commonplaces were beyond the most optimistic dreams of even fifty years ago and conveniences now being enjoyed by a vast majority of the people of the United States were not attainable by even the wealthiest families at the turn of the century.

Greatest present need appears to be for a sane and sensible estimate of what has already been accomplished by the American people and for development of sound plans under which this progress can be continued.

Looking forward from yesterday's celebration, which may also be regarded as the 130th anniversary of Mansfield's founding, it will be readily recognized that there are still many things to be done here, and the extent to which Mansfield is improved over what it now is depends entirely on the earnestness, intelligence and energy which public officials, civic groups and citizens carry into the task of municipal betterment along various lines.

Mansfield is far from being a "finished product." It cannot stand still. It will either go forward or backward. Aside from occasional temporary setbacks, its entire history has been one of gradual but substantial progress.

Judged by the success of yesterday's celebration and the fine spirit of co-operative effort and civic interest manifested on that occasion, there need be no fear for Mansfield's future.

Peace With Ireland.

BY THE new agreement between Great Britain and Ireland, the latter apparently becomes almost like one of the Dominions of the British Empire, though with a bond not so strong as that between Britain and Canada. There will be more voluntary co-operation than there has been for many years.

Important difficulties are adjusted. Ireland pays $50,000,000 of land annuities, held up since 1932. Britain will withdraw garrisons from Irish ports, surrendering old treaty rights. There are sensible tariff compromises.

"The agreement," says a recent London dispatch, "is regarded as the most important development in relations between the two countries since partition of all Ireland in 1922."

President De Valera declares that he has not surrendered his goal for a united Ireland, but he is practical. He gains peace and the moral backing of the British Empire, while Britain, with a friendly co-operative Ireland, retains a defensive western outpost. Both nations recognize that it is essential for the two races and countries to work together.

Welcome for Non-Nazi Books.

THE Nazi book-burning in Vienna, which began after Hitler's seizure of Austria, has one unusual result. Four students of Princeton have cabled the fuehrer asking him to donate to their university the non-Aryan books seized in the Austrian library pogrom. They say they have done it in good faith, and there is no doubt that the Princeton library would appreciate the books, which represent some of the best literature of modern times.

But Hitler, of course, will not grant the request. He may even regard it as an insult. He believes the Nazi party is the best judge of what people should read. Hitler seems to be interested in only one book, "My Fight," which has become the Nazi Bible.

The problem created by communist, nazi and fascist alien agitators in this country naturally raises the question of how American zealots would be treated in Germany, Russia or Italy.

For those who enjoy looking ahead, it may be remarked that the Christmas tree crop is said to be exceptionally large this year.

A Mother Tells What Happened To Her Boy

Editor's Note—Following is a letter that should be read by every automobile driver and made the subject of study by school children. It is reprinted from the April issue of Public Safety magazine and was written by a mother who lost a small son in traffic.

An appeal, entitled "Dear Driver," in which a father pleaded with motorists to drive carefully and protect his daughter, was read in open court by Traffic Judge J. M. Braude of Chicago. A few days later Judge Braude received this answer:

I have just read your letter to "Dear Driver."

I'm glad you can say "Dear Driver," because I can't. Sometimes when I think of drivers they appear as something between a leopard and an elephant—they sneak up quietly with great speed, like a leopard, but suddenly become as huge and impossible to stop as an elephant.

You see, I'm a mother. I have a daughter, too. If she's a wee bit late getting home from school I become so horribly frightened I think death would be preferable to the awful torture I must endure. I even dislike letting her go out to play, because, as you say, I cannot be with her.

But, of course, she must go out to play—"all the other kids do." At night I am afraid to pray that God will watch her and keep her from harm, because I used to do that when we had our daughter and our son.

Now we don't have him any more, because I let him go out to play once too often and one of your "Dear Drivers" cut him down.

Less than 10 minutes after he went to play some of my neighbors brought one of his little shoes up to my apartment.

You should see what being hit by a car can do to shoes! I didn't recognize that shoe. He had on his play shoes—we were saving his new shoes for special occasions. He was buried in them!

Honestly, Judge Braude, it takes much, much strength to go to look at a child you have bathed—one whose little hands and face and knees would sometimes get so black you would wonder if they would ever scrub clean again ...whose colds you worried so over and got up many times during the night to see if he was covered, and wondered what you would do if his fever went up much farther, knowing your purse wouldn't stretch to include doctor's calls.

And looking at those golden curls and that fair skin, wondering (in your own secret heart) how anything so beautiful happened to come to you!

Honestly, it's hard to enter the portals of a place marked "Funeral Home" and walk down quiet, empty aisles to a small white casket and look at that child of white marble.

You feel too utterly crushed to weep. And then you feel: "This can't be so! It's only a hideous nightmare. Soon I'll awake and see him again."

But you never do! You go quietly, if limply, through the whole dream-like ordeal, because you are civilized and you know other parents go through it. If they can, you can!

But sometimes you feel you can't go on—that you must abandon yourself to wild grief. But somehow you don't.

Then sets in the rest of your life—the common "every days"—and you wonder how you can bear it. There's a very large chunk cut right out of your heart and, believe me, it does not heal. And you know it never will. Life can never again be completely happy.

You are never again quite free. Tears well at most unexpected times and places. But you must restrain them at all costs, because even a beast will hide its cuts and bruises from the world by dragging its injured body to its lair and licking its wounds.

Oh, those nights! You witness that accident 10,000 times! Your body aches because you can't drive from your mind's eye those wheels going over that tiny body and you pray God it didn't hurt too much. You wish you could have borne the pain for him. You will, the rest of your life.

Then you think and think—wondering if there isn't something you can do to help a cause that something must be done about. Something must be done because every day children or parents or both are cut down.

Such needless slaughter in a world already saturated with grief, bloodshed, and death! With each year an army killed right here in our own country! Something must be done! Your little girl and my little girl must not be sacrificed. It would be more than I could bear, it seems, to lose another.

This is the first letter I have ever written to someone I do not know. But because my boy is always on my mind and your letter fitted in ... well, here it is—unplanned and poorly done. I have no money, but I'm strong and could work hard. So please, if there is anything I can do along these lines, inform me.

Best of luck to you, and may God protect your little girl.

Hull's Program Is Bringing Trade

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—With business in the United States still in the doldrums, according to a recent commerce department report March was the 16th consecutive month in which American exports exceeded those of the corresponding month in the previous year.

It is pretty hard not to give Secretary of State Cordell Hull's reciprocal tariff policy credit for this favorable foreign trade record.

Moreover, the overseas countries with which Secretary Hull has concluded tariff treaties on Uncle Sam's behalf are the ones which, since then, have proved to be Uncle Samuel's best customers. The others, with which we have not yet succeeded in closing bargains, have lagged.

* * *

WORKING?

In short, while the remainder of our government has tinkered vainly with ineffective medicine to relieve the depression, Secretary Hull's international cure-all seems to be working.

Yet, strange to say, high tariffites in congress are insisting that the executive branch of the government should be deprived of authority to negotiate these reciprocal bargains—on the ground that it amounts to treaty making, which constitutionally should be subject to legislative approval.

Well, maybe so, technically speaking.

* * *

A "RELIGION"?

Still, the constitution has been considerably strained by various New Deal prescriptions, intended to improve conditions, but which have not permanently improved them.

Why not take a chance with one which shows signs of being genuinely beneficial?

"But," former Senator Edward P. Costigan of Colorado (a one-time member of the United States tariff commission) once told me, "in reasoning with an ultraprotectionist you waste your effort. His complex isn't economic. It's a religion. He believes in it—regardless!"

* * *

HULL GETS RESULTS.

To assert that Secretary of State Hull is an internationalist would be a misinterpretation.

But he IS international in the sense of holding that no one people can be prosperous in the midst of an unprosperous world. I know this from many talks I have had with him as a representative, a senator and a cabinet member.

* * *

A RECORD.

Hull came into executive office on his own platform.

President Roosevelt did not support him very well for awhile, but Hull stood pat, and now he has a first-class past to point to.

The departments of the treasury, justice, the postoffice, the interior, commerce and labor are shot full of disorder. War and navy are nothing to write home about. Agriculture is in fair shape, nevertheless, not overly happy.

* * *

TRADE MARCHES UP!

And the recession still recesses.

Henry Ford's visit to the White House and 16 business magnates' encouraging statement to the contrary notwithstanding.

The only bright spot on the horizon is Secretary Hull's foreign trade record.

March exports 5 per cent above February, 7 per cent above March, 1937's, and so on backward! It is a record by Secretary Hull (and the only record) which has done something toward taking the curse off the American domestic recession.

Health Advice

Check Up On Health of Young.

—By DR. ROYAL COPELAND

Since 1930 the American Medical association has been officially represented on a committee of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers concerned with the summer "round-up" of children. I have before me a general summary of the various reports of the latest campaign.

This movement was originated about two decades ago. Its objects are primarily to improve the health of the pre-school and school child. It is indeed a worthy cause, and within the past few years a fair measure of success has been achieved.

It is gratifying that as a result of this sincere co-operation between doctors, parents and teachers, many health problems have been solved. It is believed that out of the experience gained and the plans made for the future, certain harmful factors in child health will be removed.

No one can deny that the pre-school years, the years from one to five years, constitute a trying period in child life. Many physical defects and faulty health habits develop at this age. Neglect means the development of conditions which will handicap the child when he enters school.

To deal with these special problems, clinics and public health centers have been established throughout the country. It is their object to help the parent solve the problems of the young child. If conditions are discovered which require it, the child is referred to the family doctor for attention to physical defects or weaknesses.

It is important that every child receive thorough and repeated physical examinations. Any plan that promotes such care is to be commended.

Often Neglected.

Sometimes it is necessary to put on campaigns to show the need of vaccination against smallpox and immunization against diphtheria. The importance of these precautions are well known but somehow they are neglected. In some communities children are permitted to enter school without having this medical attention. If the enforcement of these simple precautions were the rule, there would be marked decrease and ultimately a disappearance of these diseases.

Other disabilities of childhood can be better controlled if teachers and doctors continue to help the parent in this health campaign. This summer round-up idea is a public health contribution that will go far to insure health for the children and prevent many of the diseases that all too often lead to permanent disability.

Recovery Suggestion.

Editor News-Journal:

When industrial activity is low and unemployment high, as at present, it might be well to take advantage of one of the natural remedies. High wages are desirable—not merely high hourly or piece-work wages, but high yearly income.

The usual way, when a worker is laid off from a good paying job, is to try to keep working at something. It may be at anything that pays all the way from nothing up to a third or half of his regular job.

If he and his fellow workers took a cut sufficient to drop their product to a moving point, their yearly income would be greater and the time would more quickly arrive when their wages could be raised again. Let wages be such that all can work, instead of part working and supporting the unemployed.

A Chicago architect said that a 20 per cent reduction in the cost of building would start a building boom in his city. The main cost of erecting a building is labor, and building material requires much labor in getting it in its raw form, processing and transporting it. However, it is not likely that the cost of building will deliberately be lowered.

The Great Machine Age Menace . . . Intelligence Without Imagination.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

A SHOCKING and deeply revealing thing happened recently. One of the most powerful and brilliant men in America was exposed and is now imprisoned as a common thief. To many this crime seemed incredible . . . one of those monstrous mischances which can never touch our ordinary nature. Yet the most sinister part of the whole affair is this—

It WASN'T abnormal. It is a natural, almost an inevitable result of our current conditions, and so widespread is its advance that it may betray any of us into abominable falsities and cruelties!

As apathetic as though he were a tweeded Frankenstein, Richard Whitney sat through his trial . . . heard his doom . . . crossed, eventually, the penitentiary's sill, chained to a less spectacular felon. Not once did he quiver or cry out . . . or even seem to weep. No tears or terror shook his steely unconcern. Not even when some cursed . . . and shook their fists . . . and spat.

Some said he was broken by the shock. And some said he was wrung out by the shame. And some said, "There's heroic self-control." But the real reason for Richard Whitney's strange, inhuman calm lay hidden in the records of the Judge's desk . . . and in these twisted times in which we live.

Many records — medical, legal, psychiatrical—but through them all, the same phrases over and over again. "Proud, egotistical, obstinate"—so one ran. And another—"Here is a man to whom the idea of personal and financial failure was apparently inconceivable" . . . "a man of superior intelligence but unimaginative, so that he never believed he could run afoul of the law" . . . "an intelligence so high that only one per cent of the people of the world could score as well—BUT WITH NO IMAGINATION TO BALANCE IT OR SET A CURB UPON IT."

Intelligence without imagination. There, hidden in a mass of scientific phraseology, lay the sinister secret of Richard Whitney's enormous power and enormous guilt . . . and the possible jinx of this whole smartie, heartless age.

Intelligence without imagination—a psychic horror more dangerous than any maniac, more ruthless than any fiend. The power to THINK incredible feats . . . to rule, for years, over that jungle herd of golden dinosaurs whose lair is Wall Street . . . but no power or desire to follow his thoughts through . . . no power, even, to stand off and look at himself and see his approaching doom.

We're breeding people like that these days . . . The scientists blame it on speed tortured glands—but they're wrong. People don't get like that because they have too much or too little thyroid.

THEY GET THAT WAY WHEN LIFE BECOMES TOO EASY . . . WHEN THERE'S ALWAYS A MACHINE TO DO THINGS FOR YOU . . . ALWAYS A PARENT OR UNCLE SAM TO SMOOTH THINGS FOR YOU . . . WHEN LIFE BECOMES FULL OF ESCAPE MECHANISMS, MENTAL, MORAL AND PHYSICAL, AND YOU CAN DUCK FROM ANYTHING THAT BOTHERS YOU . . . INCLUDING YOUR LANDLORD AND GOD.

The Push Button Age . . . and the Smartie Age. Intelligence without Imagination. We should worry about tomorrow . . . let's hang up a record today!

So we don't worry. We don't think things through. And presently we find—we CAN'T. We're still smart but, somehow, the combination won't work. For, in spite of our shrewdness and in spite of our speed—

THE OLD CONSEQUENCES KEEP COMING RIGHT ALONG, AND THE OLD RULES KEEP GRINDING RIGHT ALONG—

AND, ALTHOUGH WE MAY HAVE FORGOTTEN HIM, GOD'S STILL RIGHT ON THE JOB!

You and Your Nation's Affairs

Ever Loyal to Our Blunders.

By WALTER E. SPAHR
Professor of Economics, New York University.

The New Deal government has been obsessed with the notion that government planning and control of business enterprise and other social activities are preferable to freedom in human activity under appropriate regulation.

This government in its planning and control activities has seemed to recognize no bounds to what it might properly do. It has considered itself wiser than the millions of buyers and sellers whose judgments are reflected in the forces of supply and demand.

It has considered itself sufficiently endowed with wisdom to justify its attempts to regulate the supply of some four major products, to fix prices of individual commodities, to determine the "proper" average of prices, to fix "proper" wages, to say when some prices are too high and others too low, to create the "proper" amount of currency through inflation and devaluation, to supersede competitive forces, to do the thinking on everything for everybody.

This obsession led to repression in a very large proportion of our important economic activities. Everything that did not seem to conform to the notions of the armchair theorizers and planners felt the heavy hand of a repressive government. The consequence was that this repression all along the line plunged this nation into a depression despite the natural and inflationary forces which were contributing to business expansion.

Now that we are in a depression as a consequence, what is the solution to be? In general, we are given to understand that we must have more of this same sort of government as a cure for the sad results which it caused! Perhaps its chief contribution toward a business expansion in the past was a program of spending and currency inflation.

The consequence was an expansion that was largely unsound. Now that we are down in a depression again, the chief thing this government offers is more public spending and currency inflation—so that we shall be assured of another depression! The program for public spending has already started, and currency inflation seems not far behind.

Such a program is characteristic of the thinking of the simple-minded. It requires the minimum of brains and very little common sense to think that far. It is bad enough to do this once within a space of five years; but to repeat the procedure when the obvious results are staring us in the face is to mark us as a nation of economic illiterates.

Has President Roosevelt forgotten the warning he issued in 1932 about governments being "wrecked on the rocks of unsound fiscal policies"? Apparently he has. Or perhaps one may conclude that this wreck is definitely awaiting this nation and that the president does not know how to prevent it. Even poor old France with all her troubles, is now pointing to these policies of the United States as an example of a foolish and dangerous governmental program!

Along with this resumption of the foolish spending program come the inflationists with their nostrums. Representative Patman has an inflationary bill in the house; Senator Elmer Thomas has one in the senate; and, on April 6, Senator Logan of Kentucky introduced one (S. 3800).

This thoroughly absurd bill directs the board of governors of the federal reserve system to raise the average of prices to the 1926 level, requires to the board to pump currency into circulation until all persons able and willing to work are employed, and prescribes that other equally foolish or impossible things shall be done.

Depressions always bring out inflationists, and they are always people who have made no careful study of monetary history and principles. In their confusion, they seem to believe that they have stumbled upon some new idea. They are angry when they are opposed. Ordinarily they devote themselves to fighting for their foolish plans rather than to a search for facts and to a study of history in an effort to learn whether their better informed critics are not correct and they themselves in error.

With their lack of understanding of monetary matters comes stubbornness. These people are one of society's burdens. When they become numerous they lead the nation into great dangers. They did this in 1933-37, and now they propose to do it again. They misunderstand cause and effect; they misread the significance of the consequences of their acts; they cannot reach beyond the superficial to the things that are basic; they are muddlers and wreckers; they are willing to act without sufficient knowledge, and to let others suffer the consequences.

Just how many of these inflationists there are in congress is not yet clear. But in times like these they require watching. At the moment one may find some encouragement in the fact that the treasury, the board of governors of the federal reserve system, and perhaps even the president, will oppose them. But it would seem that we are on our way again toward another spree and another collapse. I pointed these things out in 1933-37, and the consequences are as I predicted. I am predicting again, and I shall be right again. I shall be right, not because I am infallible, but because I am basing my predictions on elementary principles in economics.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — Steve Allio will not think fondly of you if you come after him with a camera. Steve Allio is a successful man, a big man, with a fine farm in upstate New York and an ample income. He is, in fact, one of this town's more successful chefs. He is the supreme overlord of all things prepared for the palates of thousands of guests who frequent this great hotel.

But he will not permit anyone to photograph him. "No, no, no," he says, backing away. When anyone is as adamant on any simple question such as this there must be a reason. There is. It had to do with a custard pie. A throwing pie. Hear ye, hear ye:

One fine, crisp New York morning a motion picture company approached Steve and confided that it wanted to make a picture which should answer for all time: "Where Do Custard Pies Come From?" Steve, as chef, was to toss his organization into the scheme and bake perhaps 100 custard pies. Being a friendly sort, Steve agreed.

* * *

SO THE pies were baked, and the camera crew arrived and Steve was garbed in the conventional white apron and tall kitchen cap that chefs the world over inevitably wear.

Meanwhile, the director was posing Steve and the cameras were grinding when — blub! — somebody heaved one of those creamy custard pies. It was a birdie. It caught Steve in the face.

Naturally, he was taken aback. They apologized. Seeing so many pies had been too much for the self-control of one of the men. He was so sorry. Would Steve be magnanimous and forgive a man who really meant well?

So Steve donned a new white uniform and posed once more before the cameras which were to answer for all time the question Where Do Custard Pies Come From?

Blop!

It was a shot that would have made the early Keystone comedians jittery with professional jealousy. It caught Steve full in the face. And the creamy, custard stuff blopped over his eyes, and in his hair, and it smeared his new freshly starched chef's uniform.

* * *

WELL? Well, really! What would you do? And there was a meat cleaver within Steve's reach, too. No, he didn't commit mayhem. But, after this gross breach of faith, after this second betrayal by a Judas in motion picture clothing, Steve Allio "dismissed" the crew.

He still makes custard pies, occasionally, if the demand warrants them.

But no more movies.

If the question concerning the source of custard pies ever comes up, somebody else will have to answer it. Mr. Allio of Mentone, France and New York, just isn't interested. He's afraid he might run out of uniforms.

Weeds Have Value.

Believe it or not—the weed's place in Nature seems to have been vindicated.

A writer in Country Gentleman tells of an experiment conducted in Maryland to learn the right rotation of crops in preparation for tobacco raising. A number of measured plots of ground were planted with known soil-improving crops. The following year on the same plots, tobacco was raised.

It chanced the first year that a number of plots were left vacant and these produced a dense crop of weeds. In preparation for tobacco growing, both the so-called soil-improving crops and the weeds were plowed under and the tobacco was planted on all alike. When the experiment was checked, tobacco following the weed growth was found to yield from $100 to $150 per acre more than that grown after the supposed soil-improving plants.

Clearly, Mother Nature knew what she was doing when she created a plant growth capable of persisting even against the enmity of man, and prospering under most adverse conditions.—Detroit News.

RICHLAND TAX VALUATION UP THREE PER CENT

Increase in Past Year Due Entirely to New Building; Under State Average.

Richland county lagged behind the rest of Ohio in percentage of increase in real estate valuation last year over 1936, the state tax commission reported today.

The county's increase of 2.73 per cent was under the state average of 4.48 per cent but above a number of other counties in this area, including Crawford and Holmes.

The increase here was accounted for entirely by new building, including homes and industrial plants, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said. The new Westinghouse office building contributed heavily to the increase, he added.

Re-appraisal of real estate in the county is now under way and will be completed in Richland county this summer. It is expected to increase values about five per cent and add approximately $50,000 to the annual tax bill in Mansfield and Shelby.

Up $1,647,000 In County.

In money, the state increase amounted to $239,927,664, which will boost the total real estate tax bill by $5,500,000, the tax commission estimated. The Richland county valuation increase was listed at $1,647,210.

Wolfe said it was virtually impossible to estimate the amount of the tax increase due to the boost in valuations, since the tax rates vary in all sections of the county.

At an average county rate of 15 mills, however, the increase would total approximately $25,000. Estimated increases in the state were based on a 19-mill rate.

Valuation of Richland county property in 1937 was placed at $61,939,990 as compared with $60,292,780 in 1936.

Only nine of the state's 88 counties reported decreased property valuations in 1937 from the 1936 figures, the tax commission reported. The greatest decline was in Tuscarawas county where valuations dropped 4.37 per cent due to the razing of buildings to make way for the Muskingum conservancy project.

Increases reported in northcentral Ohio counties included:

Ashland, 6.85 per cent; Crawford, 1.53 per cent; Holmes, .08 per cent; and Huron, 4.61 per cent.

World's Tonic Gave Immediate Relief

From all walks of life, from people high in public opinion and from just ordinary plain folks, statements are coming in daily telling of the benefits they have derived from WORLD'S TONIC. Here is an interesting story from the prominent Mrs. Mary Kulick of 570 Neale Ave. S. W., Massillon, Ohio.

"For many years my stomach was bad. After eating, food would ferment and gas would form. After eating, agony became a regular thing and it seemed the gas would press against my heart in a manner that caused palpitation. Worrying about heart trouble and high blood pressure made me nervous and this brought on sleeplessness at night. It seemed reasonable when I was told that a bloated stomach would press against the intestinal tract nerves and add to my general irritation. I'd get dizzy spells and forget where I put things. My kidneys bothered and water had a bad odor. Frightful pains in my back and side made me feel just generally awful and tired most of the time. I was constipated all the time and formed a habit of taking strong laxatives which would always bring on griping, cramping pains in my stomach.

"A neighbor told me about WORLD'S TONIC recently and advised me to try it. I did and my constipation was given immediate relief. I was overjoyed to find that no griping crampy feeling came with this method of relief. Gradually, I felt improvement all over. I can eat full meals now and my food seems to digest properly. I even eat fruit, something I haven't done in years. I feel sure that the easing off of the pressure caused by gas and bloating has been the reason my nerves have quieted because I now sleep well and don't feel so irritable in the mornings. All in all, WORLD'S TONIC has made me feel like a new woman and I am glad to give this public endorsement to it. My friends tell me how well I now look and I, in turn, feel obligated to tell them to take WORLD'S TONIC if they want to feel as I do."

He said the meeting was held in Mead's office and lasted two hou s.

The rate proposal drafted last week by council's committee differed with the present contract, which expires this month in only one respect. It calls for the first 1,000 feet of gas for $1, where the present contract calls for a charge of $1 for the first 500 feet.

The committee's proposal calls for all gas consumed after the first 1,000 feet to be sold for 50 cents a thousand. The present contract charges 50 cents a thousand for all over 500 feet.

Adoption of the committee's rate contract would result in a saving of 25 cents a month, or $3 a year to Mansfield consumers.

Should no new rate be enacted and approved by the company before the present contract expires, the present rates would remain in effect.

A Farmer's Diary

By CALVIN A. BYERS

Monday, May 2.

This morning, just at dawn, I was aroused from sound sleep by the quick, sharp barking of two strange dogs.

I knew it was not the voice of our collie, and when I went out on the porch I saw him lying by the base of a large maple tree, whining and much disturbed.

Down about the middle of the large pasture which I had rented to a neighbor, I saw the two dogs, one yellow and shaggy, the other a dirty white, running in and out among a flock of sheep and lambs. The sheep were nervous and huddled up in groups of four or five, looking wild-eyed at the fast moving, barking dogs. The poor lambs scampered about, bleating and confused.

The dogs had isolated a large, dark-coated sheep from the rest, and were driving her into a corner of the fence. The yellow dog stood back, barking loudly, and running in from time to time to nip her legs. The other dog stood close to her head, barking too, until the poor animal became paralyzed with fear and stood motionless.

Then I saw the white dog lunge at her throat and tear away both wool and skin. The other followed and in a few seconds the bleeding victim was writhing on the ground.

I yelled at them, but they did not hear, so blood thirsty were they, I grabbed a stone and hurled it with all my force, hitting the yellow dog on the thigh so that he yelped with pain and ran away, limping. His white accomplice followed at his heels.

I mused aloud, "This flock will never be an asset to its owner. What a pity that wolfish instincts sometimes dominate dogs—and humans. The innocent always suffer, when it happens."

This afternoon the dog catcher with his gun wrote finis to the story. There is no cure but death for wolfish dogs.

FRANCE WAKES UP TO FIND TAX LEVIES RAISED BY 8 PER CENT

(By United Press)

PARIS—French men and women rose today to find that during the night their taxes had been increased eight per cent as part of the government's plan to strengthen the treasury.

Eight decrees were issued. It was ordered that all national taxes including indirect contributions, should be increased eight per cent "exclusively in favor of the public treasury" until December 31, 1939.

This was estimated to raise 3,200,000,000 francs ($98,080,000).

It was ordered also that surtaxes must be paid on profits derived from contracts for rearmament and all other state business.

The government planned also to revise customs duties in order to provide an extra 200,000,000 francs ($6,130,000).

Today's decrees stipulated that henceforth income tax should be paid in monthly installments.

The tax decrees were designed to pay the cost of a plan to unify the budget, effected in the decrees. Pensions to war veterans and allotments and loans to the railroads are to be merged into the ordinary budget, which thus is increased by 3,250,000,000 francs ($99,612,000).

In an effort to increase credit operations the government decreed that business houses should accept bills on which business men might raise discount loans.

It was planned also to decrease taxes ' firms which increased their exports for this year as compared with 1937.

BARES STORY OF HOUSE-WILSON BREAK IN PARIS

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Breaking a silence of 14 years, Bob Davis, author and newspaper man, disclosed in his column in the New York Sun today Col. Edward M. House's version of his break with Woodrow Wilson in Paris in 1919.

House himself, Davis said, told the story to him and the late Herman Kohlsaat, Chicago publisher, on Feb. 3, 1924, the day Wilson died. With the passing of House on March 28—Kohlsaat died in October, 1924—Davis said he saw no reason to withhold the story.

On the morning of Feb. 3, 1924, Davis wrote, Kohlsaat invited him to go to Colonel House's home in East 74th street. They were deep in conversation when a telegram arrived announcing the death of Wilson.

Then, having sought from Davis and Kohlsaat advice on the nature of condolences he should offer Wilson's widow, House debated the matter with himself and suddenly remarked upon his misunderstanding with Wilson at the time of the peace conference.

So far as he was concerned, there was no trouble, House said, "but evidently Mr. Wilson was of another mind."

Meet At Hotel.

In that month of June, 1919, House was staying at the Hotel Grillon, Wilson at the residence of Prince Murat. They were in frequent consultation, and one afternoon Wilson dropped in at the hotel.

While they were talking, a card was brought in.

"Someone for me?" asked the president. "For you, Colonel House,' replied the doorman. 'Mr. Clemenceau is calling.'

"The president," Davis quoted House as saying, "arose and said: 'Let me not disturb you,' and with that, before I could detain him, recovered his hat and let himself out through a private exit."

House said he thought Wilson was not disturbed at the time.

Later events led him to think otherwise. He remarked that Wilson was not a well man.

A few days later Wilson again called on House and was setting down some notes on a writing pad when a doorman announced that Lloyd George was calling on Colonel House.

"I asked that he be shown into an adjoining reception room," House continued. "This time the president's reaction, as compared with his retirement when Clemenceau appeared, was indeed definite.

" 'There is no reason Mr. Lloyd George should be kept waiting,' he said, carefully folding his notes and placing the sheaf in his breast pocket. 'Nothing that I had in mind is of the least importance, I assure you. . . .'

"That was the end of my long and intimate friendship with Woodrow Wilson. Whether or no he resented my association with Clemenceau and Lloyd George at a time when he was the accredited leader of thought and expression for the United States, is for you gentlemen to reflect upon as you see fit. The facts are as stated."

TAKES 3 SONS ON DEATH RIDE

Father Buys Them Soft Drinks, Drives Car In River.

BEDFORD, Ind.—(INS)—A family quarrel was blamed today for the death ride taken by Lester Etchison, 32, who drowned himself and his three sons when he drove into the White river near here.

Notes found in his pocket mentioned domestic troubles although his widow said he had apparently been in good spirits when he took the boys away. They had started on a fishing party, she said, and he left to get some soft drinks. He raced toward the river, drove across a parking lot and plunged the car into 40 feet of water.

MR. ZERO + + +

By PATRICIA WENTWORTH

(Copyright 1938)

CHAPTER XXVIII

In luxurious surrounding not far from the scene where Algy and Gay were finding comfort in their love for one another, Mr. Zero opened the door of his room and came out upon a dimly lighted corridor. The pile of the carpet was deep, and Mr. Zero's movements were extremely quiet and controlled. The hour being a quarter before three in the morning, there was no one watching, no one saw Mr. Zero descend the stair and cross the dark hall below.

He came out of the hall into a room at the back of the house. There was no light there. He groped his way to the window and unlatched it Setting down a small attache case which he had been holding, he put both hands to the window and raised the sash. He picked up the attache case, climbed out, and drew the window gently down. Then he took a torch from his pocket and found his way round the house and down a drive. Coming out upon the road, he increased his pace and walked rapidly away into the dark.

About twenty minutes later he came to a deep pond lying a little way off the road. The water gleamed faintly under the open sky.

Mr. Zero bent to his case, took something out of it, and straightened up His arm swung, and then something went spinning through the air to fall with a splash in the deepest part of the pond.

Mr. Zero shut his attache case and retraced his steps towards the road. There was a gate to be climbed, and just as he was getting over it a car came roaring down the hill. With the gate on the outer side of a very sharp bend, the car seemed to be coming straight at him. He had time to jump down from the gate, but the lights caught him before he could turn away or throw up an arm to screen his face. The car swung to the bend and was gone

But five minutes later Mr. Zero was quite comfortable in his mind again. The fellow was probably a returning roysterer, and must anyhow have had enough to do to negotiate that extremely awkward bend at the really reckless pace he had been making. If he had been going as slowly as he should have been, his headlights would have given Mr. Zero a more protracted publicity, and Mr. Zero passionately desired privacy

In less than half an hour he was in bed again, and long before the clock struck four he was asleep. What was there to keep him awake? The letters that named him were burned and their frail ash scattered. The police had Francis Colesborough's pistols and they were welcome to them. The silencer was at the bottom of a most deep, convenient pond Mr Zero slept in peace

* * *

The car which had taken the bend with the ease and speed of long practice continued upon its way Dr Hammond had been out all day and most of the night and he was in a hurry to get home. When he had put away his car and locked the garage door he went through the house, walking on tiptoe, because he always hoped that Judith wouldn't wake But while he was getting out of his coat she was half way down the stair in her blue dressing gown

"My poor child—I thought you were never coming Soup in the dining room—come along and have some at once"

Jim Hammond grinned. "You're an officious woman, Ju. Why can't you stay quiet in your bed instead of flying up like a jack-in-the-box? Can't trust me to find my way to the dining room, can you?"

She linked her arm in his and pulled him along 'Why are you so late?"

'I'd much rather talk to you while you have your sandwiches"

The dining room was warm and bright the sandwiches were good, and the soup was hot Dr. Hammond experienced the tired man's inclination to stay where he was and not bother about going to bed When Judith drove him he snapped at her, yet presently he interrupted his undressing to wander into her room

"Funny thing happened when I was coming home You know Hangman's Corner? Well I came up to it pretty fast—"

"And some day you'll get into trouble, my child,' said Judith sitting up in bed

"Don't interrupt, woman' I'm an extremely careful driver Where was I?"

"At Hangman's corner And I do wish they'd call it something else"

"They won't because of the pond Well, I was coming down over the hill, and the headlights picked up a man who was getting over the gate. What do you suppose he was doing there at that hour of the night?"

"Going to Hangman's pond or coming away from it I should say

"He was coming away said Dr Hammond—"getting back over the gate into the road—and he looked scared to blazes."

"I don't wonder. He probably thought you were going to run him down gate and all."

Dr. Hammond yawned.

He drifted out of the room, and made short work of getting into his pajamas, returning to switch out the light and announce as he got into bed, "If anyone else thinks of having twins, tell 'em to drown 'em. Night, Ju."

Yet twenty minutes later his head came up from the pillow with a jerk. Judith Hammond, wooing a dream in which the Meaker baby was hers, felt justly annoyed at being not only awaked but shaken.

"Ju, I know who that fellow was"

* * *

Dr. Hammond and Judith were not the only people in their set who talked long into this night. Gay filled with her recent engagement to Algy, had made Sylvia listen to her story.

'I'm going to marry him." said Gay with a fighting sparkle in her eyes.

She and Sylvia were in the parlor, Sylvia in an easy chair, and Gay on her knees before a reluctant fire. She gave it a vicious poke and repeated firmly, "I'm going to marry him."

"But, darling, how can you? I mean, you can't marry him if he shot Francis, because they'll hang him, won't they? Besides we are cousins—aren't we, and I don't think it would be at all nice."

Sylvia's lovely eyes widened. "I thought they did if you shot people"

'He didn't shoot Francis!"

Sylvia was surprised. "Everyone thinks he did, and it would clear it all up and settle everything, and the police would go away and not worry us any more the police would decide. What I can't understand is why they don't arrest Algy and take him away, because if he didn't do it, they could always let him out again, and if he did—well, I really don't think it's quite nice saying good-morning, and talking about the weather, and asking him to pass the salt—not if he shot Francis—I mean, well, is it?"

Gay caught her by the wrists. "Sylly, he did not shoot Francis! Will you get that into your head and keep it there! If it's the only idea you've got in the world, stick to it! Algy—didn't—shoot—your—husband."

Sylvia said, "Oh, well—" and spread her hands to the small, uneasy flame which had responded to Gay's last vigorous poke. "Of course," she continued, "I don't want Algy to be hanged if he really didn't do it, even if it would save a lot of trouble. But I don't think I should be engaged to him—just in case, you know."

"I am engaged to him," said Gay, with smiling lips.

"I know, darling. That's just how I felt when Mummy wouldn't let me go with Frank Rutherford any more. He wanted to be engaged, you know, and if it hadn't been for Mummy I might have married him."

"Suppose you had, Sylly?"

"Darling, he might have gone on being a curate for years, and years, and years, and I don't know what they get, but Mummy said it wasn't enough. And I cried dreadfully, but when Francis asked me to marry him, wasn't I thankful! Because it doesn't look nice if you have to break off an engagement—I mean, Francis being so rich, people would have been sure to talk, wouldn't they?"

"Do you mean that you would have broken off your engagement to Frank Rutherford if you had been engaged to him when Francis asked you?"

"I don't think you're being at all kind," she said, and dropped a tear, but whether for Frank or for Francis was more than Gay could tell. It was only a moment, however, before she looked up with a dawning interest in her eyes. "You know, darling, I rather liked the other one. Couldn't you be engaged to him instead?"

Gay stared, sat back on her heels, and said as firmly as her surprise would allow, "What other one?"

"The nice polite one," said Sylvia. "I'm sure he would if you encouraged him a little. I think he's rather shy, but so polite. I think he'd make a really good husband."

* * *

If Sir Francis had been dead a little longer, Gay might have retorted, "Then marry him yourself." She decided regretfully that it wouldn't be decent so she said in an exasperated voice, "I suppose you know what you're talking about, Sylly—I don't!"

"That nice, polite Mr. Brewster, I really was sorry I didn't see him yesterday when he was here. He'd have been so nice and ordinary after that horrid Colonel Anstruther and all those policemen and people. I think it would be much better for you to be engaged to him."

"It's all very well to laugh," said Sylvia in a protesting voice, "but I do think it would be nice to have a safe, ordinary sort of person like Mr. Brewster coming into the family. I mean, I really do think we want someone like that for a change. It isn't as if we'd been brought up to have criminals in the family, and now they all say Francis was, and you say yourself that Algy is going to be arrested. And what do you think Colonel Anstruther and Mr. Brook said to me this morning? Why, they actually said they could send me to prison for taking that stupid envelope."

"I suppose they could," she said soberly.

"FREE MOTOR OIL (UP TO THE FULL MARK) -IF I FORGET TO CHECK IT"

ABOUT the best way to ruin a swell engine is to run shy on oil. To keep this from happening, all of us Shell dealers have a little proposition for you.

Hop in your car and drive to any one of our stations. If we don't look at your oil without your asking, then you put the finger on us. We'll bring your oil level right up to the full mark free.

We'll use our Golden Shell Oil, too, the kind that has been refined especially for today's stop-and-go driving.

Maybe you never knew that stop and go calls for a certain kind of oil. Well, it does—and here's why: You average ten cold starts a day. If your oil is slow-flowing, one start can cause as much wear as 50 miles of steady running.

Golden Shell changes this. It's fast-flowing. The second you start, it coats each engine part with a tough oil film that doesn't break down into harmful sludge and carbon . . . even under the extreme heat of your steady running.

• • •

SEEKS TO GET MEASURE OUT OF COMMITTEE

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt expressed the hope today that the house could vote on wage-hour legislation at this session despite refusal of the rules committee to give it priority.

Chairman Norton (D-NJ) of the house labor committee made public a letter which Mr. Roosevelt sent her Saturday from Charleston, S. C., suggesting the bill might reach the floor either by a petition or by reconsideration of the rules committee's action.

Emphasizing that the committee was within its rights and that he had no right to criticize house rules, the president said he had "a profound respect for and devotion to the Democratic legislation process."

"The continuing fairness of that legislative process is the foundation of enduring democracy," he said.

Major Program.

"There are, however, certain types of measures in each session which are of undoubted national importance because they relate to major policies of government and affect the lives of millions of people.

"It has always seemed to me that in the case of these measures —few in any one session—the house membership of the legislative body should be given full and free opportunity to discuss them. This discussion may end in drastic amendment, or in recommital, or even in complete rejection.

"In the case of the wage and hour legislation, the majority party of the house is committed to legislation by its national platform — and I have no personal doubt that a large majority of the membership of the house believes that the house as a whole should pass its judgment on such legislation."

Mrs. Norton said she would draft a petition this week. If it is signed by 218 members—a majority of the house—automatic consideration of the wage-hour bill would result.

An impending adjournment rush, however, may block her plans. Many members said privately the fact that the petition could not become effective before May 23 at the earliest meant the house would not reach the controversial legislation.

They agreed, too, that there was little chance of achieving a vote by the alternative mentioned by Mr. Roosevelt—reconsideration by the rules committee.

Five southern Democrats and three Republicans joined forces last Friday against five Democrats and one Republican to prevent the bill from being rushed to the floor by special procedure.

The penalty for defacing license tags apparently holds no fear for an Ohio motorist who passed through the city yesterday. The owner—or somebody —painted green trees as a background for the covered wagon appearing on the license in commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the Northwest Territory. Original, anyhow.

With the international situation as it is these days, Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner, wasn't too surprised to receive a request for a birth certificate from a former Mansfielder in Rumania. There's hardly a day goes by that Dr. Rehder isn't asked to send a birth certificate somewhere in the United States, but this is the first he ever has had from the Balkan country, he said.

People who watch the parade today will be interested to know that the conestoga wagon used by the pioneers in their re-enactment of the Northwest Territory trek is modeled from a vehicle that was driven here by the grandfather of a Mansfield woman, Mrs. Edwin O. Townsend, now in Dunedin, Fla., with Mr. Townsend. Her grandfather who came west in the covered wagon with ox-team was John Buck. Now in the museum at Marietta, the wagon was in the Buck family for more than 100 years.

JACKIE COOGAN GOES TO COURT TODAY IN MOVIE RICHES FIGHT

(By United Press)

HOLLYWOOD — Jackie Coogan goes into court today in his efforts to collect whatever is left of his movie fortune, which his mother and his stepfather insisted he did not deserve and, under California law, could not demand.

The 23-year-old Jackie, whose hair is thinner than a man twice his age and whose box office value dropped to zero when he put on his first pair of long pants, wanted these things of his mother and step-father, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Bernstein:

1. A continuance of the temporary receivership into which Judge Emmet H. Wilson put the affairs of Jackie Coogan Productions, Inc.

2. An accounting of his fortune, to determine whether it had dwindled below the $500,000 valuation given it by Receiver John Bigby, who said he had found little in cash and a big block of real estate.

3. A trial to settle the question of whether he deserves all of the money the movies paid him as the first of the child movie stars.

His attorney, William H. Rains, said he had several new affidavits from movie stars who played with Jackie and who knew his late father. The affidavits asserted that Jackie had a legal right to his earnings, Rains said.

Mrs. Bernstein, plump, middle aged, joined her husband in asking dismissal of the entire proceedings on the ground that Jackie's original petition was faulty and if not that, dismissal on the theory that under California law no minor has any right to earnings made before his 21st birthday.

DEFENSE AREA RAID FOLLOWS BOMB TOSSING

British Settlement Invasion Stirs New Crisis; 2,000 Chinese Reported Slain.

BULLETIN

SHANGHAI —(INS)— Japanese gendarmes were ousted from the Nankin road sector of the international settlement today after British troops had been rushed into the region.

(By United Press)

SHANGHAI — Kilted British troops deployed on the double-quick along Nanking road to force the expulsion of Japanese gendarmes who "invaded" the British defense sector of the International Settlement.

Under orders from Brigadier-General Telfer-Smollet, the British commander-in-chief, one kilted detachment occupied the Louza police station with instruction not to leave until the Japanese clear out.

The tense situation arose when a bomb, the third in less than two days, was thrown by Chinese terrorists in downtown Shanghai. Ten Chinese were hurt.

The Japanese immediately sent two truckloads of soldiers with fixed bayonets into the British defense zone and posted 45 guards along Nanking road. For six hours afterwards no one was allowed to pass, while the gendarmes searched all buildings.

Bomb Made by Japs.

The "invasion" was similar to earlier crises in the International Settlement, in more than one of which United States marines bluntly ordered the Japanese to get out.

The latest bomb, aimed at a Japanese truck, was of Japanese manufacture, and indicates that there is a leak of Japanese munitions toward Chinese hands.

Worried authorities are co-operating in trying to round up an estimated 2,000 Chinese terrorists who have entered the settlement to provoke incidents.

Japanese reports from Hangchow, south of here, said that two Chinese divisions, numbering about 20,000 men, were "annihilated" after they had penetrated to within 15 miles of Hangchow

The Chinese retreated, according to the Japanese, leaving 2,000 dead.

Chinese dispatches from Hangchow today charged that Japanese airplanes bombed an isolation hospital at Hanyang directed by the League of Nations, wounding five and causing considerable damage. The league was notified by Chinese authorities.

FAIR ENOUGH!

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—It is a little too early, but every day I turn to the sport page expecting to read that Joe Louis, the heavyweight champion of the world, has broken a hand in a training contest, necessitating the postponement of his fight with Max Schmeling, the hero of the Hitler youth. This really cannot be expected to happen until about the first or second week in June, as the date set for the struggle is June 22.

After that Louis would need two months for mending, for this would be a very serious fracture and his recovery would bring us deep into the month of August. And after that, according to tradition, the champion would be entitled to a tune-up contest in which to test whether the injury had healed sufficiently to permit him to do himself justice in a contest involving the highest bauble in fistiana's realm. Training for the tune-up contest would require four weeks, thus throwing the tune-up bout back to the middle of September. And then, in simple justice, Louis would need two weeks' rest before going into training again for the meeting with Schmeling, which would take four weeks more.

That would defer the championship fight until November, which is football season and no time of the year for the presentation of an outdoor prize fight, as every practical sportsman knows So the hero of the Hitler youth would have to be chivalrous and bide his time until the summer of next year.

There might be some who would doubt the genuineness of a broken hand in view of the fact that Schmeling knocked out Louis the last time. But the injury could be substantiated by X-ray photographs, of which there is a large file available in the hospital libraries at all times.

* * *

The Nazis of Germany and our own Nazis, of course, would regard this as a dirty trick, but pugilism is very much like Nazism, and it may be laid down that there is no trick so dirty but that a Nazi would play it on the other party if he had a chance.

Moreover, Schmeling himself has set precedents which would justify the fracture of one of Louis hands.

Soon after Schmeling came to this country he was matched to fight a slashing tiger named Whoops O'Malley in Boston. O'Malley was called Whoops because he had a rather pronounced development of his left brisket and the customers would emit falsetto cries of "whoops" whenever an opponent stuck him there. He was stout and pugnacious, however, and Mr. Schmeling developed some diplomatic equivalent of the broken hand, declining to have traffic with him

Later on, Schmeling won the bauble, as it is called by a special favor of Jim Farley and the New York prize fight commission, which declared the bauble to be at stake in his contest with Jack Sharkey when obviously it was not. He promised to give Sharkey a return match as a return favor to the commission, but returned to Germany, and the next year fought Willie Stribling instead. He knew he could beat Stribling, but he had doubts about Sharkey.

* * *

So a fracture or a run-around of some kind seems imperative in the case of the proposed Louis-Schmeling fight if the finest traditions of pugilism and Nazism are not to be lowered into the dust.

The prize fight commission, which was a pattern for the Nazi dictatorship long before Hitler rose to power, might reasonably forbid the fight on political grounds, having stopped one some years ago on social grounds. That was a rank case of class discrimination in which Enzi Fiermonte, the stepfather of John Jacob Astor, was refused permission to fight Slapsie Maxie Rosenbloom for the light-heavyweight bauble. Determined to keep the grand old game democratic, the commisioners ruled that no stepfather of John Jacob Astor ever should have a chance to win the second highest bauble in the realm.

The beautiful Fascist thus was forced to make his living by other talents, which he was able to do, being a versatile athlete, although he used to mope around the office of his manager, Mr. James J. Johnston, saying, "I wanna earna my leeving fighting. Thees is a helova way to earna my leeving."

As the hero of the Nazi youth, Schmeling should be treated according to his own precedents and an adaptation of David Harum's version of the golden rule, "Do unto a Nazi as he would do unto you and do it fust."

Hollywood Speaks—

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—You can see Freddie Bartholomew working on the Metro lot again, but you ask about Ronald Sinclair and people out there look a little vague.

"He isn't with us any more," they say.

Ronald's the lad who was supposed to take Freddie's place in pictures when Freddie's Aunt Millicent took him out on strike. Ronald, singularly like Freddie in appearance and manner, made one picture called "Thoroughbreds Don't Cry." And then Freddie came back.

It's that same old movie game they've been playing since the days when producers woke up to find that their anonymous screen players had been made into "stars" by nickelodeon fans And they're still playing it no less craftily no more subtly.

When Gladys Smith became Mary Pickford and started mooning, in her practical way, about the huge fortune she should take from pictures somebody discovered Mary Miles Minter, whose curls were just as nice as Gladys Smith's Gladys went on and got her millions, and in this case Mary Miles Minter caught on with the public too But it doesn't always work that way

Every studio likes to have under contract at the proper time, a personality it can promote as an ace in the hole or a bluffing threat in the movie poker game. It's supposed to help keep stars in line.

* * *

When Metro wasn't sure of Garbo's return, its sheltered ace was Tala Birell, blond Viennese whose resemblance to the Swede is marked even now when she's trying to alter it for her independent career, Garbo came back.

When Valentino quarreled with Paramount, the bosses there recruited a young fellow named Jacob Krantz, rechristened him Ricardo Cortez, and started a "great lover" buildup. Valentino didn't come back, but Cortez was launched on a long and profitable career.

* * *

Julie Haydon is having success on Broadway now, after Hollywood used her badly. Julie was elated one day when RKO signed her—but next day she knew the reason. Her resemblance to Ann Harding was being capitalized. Ann then being in one of her several studio battles Julie caused dismay by refusing to play ace in the hole—and bobbing her hair.

One of the most amusing stories of the sort centered around George Bancroft's refusal to play in "The Wolf of Wall Street" several years ago. Then a big star, Bancroft retired to his Santa Monica home while Paramount fussed, fumed, and subsequently schemed.

Result of the scheming was that Bancroft one afternoon, reading his paper, saw that Wallace Beery, then under Paramount contract, would play the Bancroft role. Next morning George was at the studio —and "The Wolf of Wall Street" was one of his most successful films. But what he didn't know was that Paramount made the Beery announcement for his benefit—and never intended to put anybody but Bancroft in the picture!

THE FOX LOOKS GOOD IN WOOD MEMORIAL, SHOULD BE THREAT IN DERBY.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK—(INS)—On Saturday at Jamaica, Fighting Fox, full brother of Gallant Fox, ran so far away from the field in the Wood Memorial as to virtually conceal himself from four other derby eligibles and immediately there arose a growing sentiment here to bet the horse right through the Kentucky derby this week-end. The Fox looked very good, off that performance.

But so did the Chief on the same day. He beat, among others, Lawrin, supposedly a strong candidate.

Bull Lea has looked good all spring. And what of Dauber, who was only a length away from Stagehand, and coming on, at a mile and an eighth—the short route—in the Santa Anita derby and what of Stagehand himself?

The fact is that I've been looking at these derbies down there in Kentucky since the Morvich year and I've found that if they can go into the final week with one outstanding horse they call it a race. This time they have at least six. It isn't just a wide open race. It's practically an aperture.

Besides, there have been times, I fear, when the boys started to murmur hopefully about the field being wide open, they weren't being flattering. What they meant was wide open at the mouth.

But this one ought to be the best derby of 20 years. They've got the horses for it.

* * *

Co-favorite With Sande's Stagehand.

AFTER Saturday's revelations, they made Fighting Fox co-favorite with Stagehand, which was all right, but the price wasn't. It's 3-1 and you'll just about get that at the mutuel windows on Saturday.

Nedayr, which won the Pimlico futurity last year and ran out of the money behind Fighting Fox on Saturday, was shuffled well back from second place in the future books and there were rumors that the price on Stagehand might lengthen.

The colt almost surely will run in the derby trial at the Downs on Thursday, since he hasn't raced since his nose victory over Seabiscuit in the Santa Anita handicap back in March and they can't mean to send him into the derby like that. The six furlongs of the derby trial ought to be just right.

It was for Bubbling Over back in 1926, wasn't it?

A Kentucky Derby Favorite's Day: Lawrin Shows What It's Like

LAWRIN'S hoofs are inspected as day begins. First and last to visit Lawrin is blacksmith. After workout, blacksmith fills Lawrin's hoofs with mud to keep them from becoming brittle.

BEN A. JONES, trainer for H. M. Woolf stables, on gray horse which is known as "lead pony," leads string of Woolf horses to workout. Most trainers work their horses around 7 a. m., to get on track before it becomes chopped up by other horses.

THERE IS one workout for each Kentucky Derby candidate a day. This is it. Exercise boy is aboard Lawrin on morning gallop. In early training, a horse gallops three-quarters of a mile. The distance is increased up to 1¼ miles—the Derby distance.

GROOM gives Lawrin his rubdown, just after exercise boy has led him back to stall. Lawrin's trainer is never far away. He has watched every step Lawrin took during the workout. Trainer, who feeds Lawrin carrots, rates as his best friend.

LAWRIN gets drink of water after exercise at Churchill Downs. Having been blanketed following the rubdown, horse is walked for about 45 minutes. At intervals of 10 minutes he is given drink of water. Each horse has individual pail.

Milnar Stars For Tribe In Relief Role

Stops Threatening Tigers In Ninth Inning.

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—When the New York Yankees romped away with the American league pennant a year ago one of the unsung, but vitally important members of the flag-winning cast was Pitcher Johnny Murphy.

Murphy seldom started a contest, but throughout the season he pitched brilliant when called to the air of faltering members of the staff in late innings of important games.

Have Counterpart.

Milnar was rushed to the rescue of the veteran Mel Harder in the ninth inning of yesterday's game with Detroit and muffled the bats of the Tigers as Cleveland took the decision 4 to 3.

Cleveland had a 4 to 2 lead going into the ninth inning when Harder ran into trouble. With none out the Tigers pushed across one run and had the tying counter on first. It was at this junction that Harder was pulled and Milnar sent to the box.

Milnar then forced Dixie Walker and Charley Gehringer to fly out and ended the contest in dramatic fashion by striking out the murderous hitting Hank Greenberg.

Harder gave the Tigers 10 hits in the eight innings he worked and five of those safeties were credited to Pete Fox, Detroit's lead off man.

Garner 12 Hits.

Eldon Auker, the submarine style star, was in the box for Detroit and was nicked for 12 hits. The Indians were off to a two-run lead in the first inning and then added markers in the fourth and seventh rounds.

The clubs were to meet here again today with Johnny Alen and Jake Wade the opposing hurlers.

BERRY LEADS MOOSE INTO FIRST PLACE

Led by Fred Berry, the Moose No. 1 team collected five victories in two matches at Collinwood and Cuyahoga Falls over the week-end to climb into first place in the Moose Traveling league.

The No 2 team dropped four out of six games on the same alleys over the week-end.

It's the Favorite That Usually Wins

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

THIRTY favorites have copped the Kentucky Derby since Aristides galloped off with a popular victory in the inaugural running in 1875. Tip: Bet on the Derby favorite . . . which will probably be Stagehand Saturday. . . . Keith O'Rourke's record leap in the Mansfield Relays high jump has created nation-wide attention. . . . Ohio State could use Moose Solters in the backfield. Notice the way he has been kicking the ball around for the Indians. He kicked two singles in triples in one St. Looie game . . . Did'ja hear Radioer Jack Graney's latest: "He went into third standing still". Of course, he meant "standing up."

Our nomination for the outstanding rookie of the year (to date): Ken Keltner . . . Watch for the Red Sox to strengthen their pitching forces with Buddy Parmelee, whom the Cubs sent to Minneapolis, in the near future . . . Mickey Cochrane didn't help himself to any Cleveland applause with his recent crack that Os' Vitt 'is a bush league pilot" . . . And have you noticed that the Indians are breaking an old American league custom this year by taking fielding practice at League park before the visiting team. That's the way they do it in the National.

Can't blame Dizzy Dean for taking the attitude he did to Ducky Medwick's letter. Just a good ol' publicity stunt for the deah ol' Cards, who need some help to make the turnstiles click this year . . . And talking about publicity stunts, how about Jackie Coogan? Or do you think that Coogan thing's on the square . . . Wonder how Galion's coming along with its Ohio State league plans? . . . And that reminds us to tell you that this year will undoubtedly mark the death of the Class D circuit.

AND will the Mansfield femmes to bowl in the national event in Cincy yelp when they find the pins being set by hand. Probably more accurate this way, but slower . . .That person who informed us of the "plight" of Jimmy Dewberry, who appeared in the J. A. C. mitt jamboree, seems to have been all wrong. The kid's dad hasn't been working we understand, but the classy little scrapper was not suffering from hunger as we were supposed to believe. Our informant just pulled a mean trick. Apologies are in order, Mr. Friendly Hand.

ST. LOUIS DUO THREATENS ALL-TIME PIN RECORD

CINCINNATI—(U.P.)—St. Louis bowlers went to the head of the list of the Women's National Bowling tournament standings today, with a doubles team battering at long-standing records.

Florence Probert and Ethel Sablatnik went into first place yesterday in the doubles event as they rolled 1,215, just 15 below the all-time record. Irene Schriefer was tied with Dorothy Burmeister of Chicago for first place in the singles with a 608 apiece. An Ohio team climbed into the doubles standings with A. Waack and N. Schmeling of Cleveland rolling a 1,137 for fourth place.

HOSTS TO WOOSTER HIGH IN MATCH TUESDAY

The Mansfield high golf club will attempt to jump back into the win column Tuesday at Possum Run when it faces Wooster high in its third match of the season. The match is scheduled for 3 p. m.

Mansfield bowed to Ashland, 9 to 7, at Ashland Country club Saturday for the first defeat of the season. Bob Moorhead of Mansfield won individual honors with a 79, while Phil Smith topped Ashland with an 81.

OHIO BOWLERS FINISH IN TOURNAMENT MONEY

MILWAUKEE — (AP) — Ohio bowlers finished in the money in all three divisions of the 21st annual National Elks' Bowling tournament conducted here. Waldorf Lodge 18 of Cleveland was sixth in the team event with 2,912 pins. C. Laughe and F. Franz, of Cleveland were second in doubles with 1,277 and E. Bland of Columbus was sixth in singles with 662.

Hi-Speeds Win, Merchants Bow In Debuts

Oils Turn Back Sandusky, 5-3, at League Park.

Mansfield's Hi-Speeds got off to an auspicious start in the first game of the season at League park Sunday, but the Merchants did not fare as well.

The Hi-Speeds took the measure of the Sandusky Auburns, 5 to 3, in the second game of the twin-bill, and the Merchants, who met the Sanduskians in the opener, bowed by a one-sided 14 to 1 count.

Although giving up 10 hits, Petey Beer pitched nice ball to keep the visitors from the plate in all but the first and seventh innings.

Held to six hits by Helberg, a former Cotton States league hurler, Manager Russ Remy's Merchants never figured in the ball game. The visitors scored in every inning but two, and climaxed their run-making with five runs in the seventh.

Collins Again Paces Scoring

Tours Westbrook Layout In 37-35—72.

Several Mansfield golfers showed mid-season form last week-end as they toured the city's three courses in near-par figures.

Heading the list was Jock Collins, Westbrook Country club pro, who banged out a sparkling par 72. Collins went out in 37, one over par, but finished with a one-under-par 35 to mark up his total. He also cracked out a 39-35—74 Saturday. P. F. Haley trailed with a 74 Sunday.

At Possum Run, Nick and Pete Linster tied for low individual honors with a pair of 74's. Both cards showed 38-36's. . . . Jim Stout, P. R. pro, followed with a 75 . . . And Chuck Snyder had an 82.

Tony Schadek walked away with low honors at Coolridge country club by socking out a 37-40—77. . . . Steve Stirtzinger came in with 37-41—78. . . . Red Keck had a 40-40—80. . . . Nine hole totals. Pete Zimmerman, 39, and Jack Kutschall, 43.

Other scores at Westbrook Saturday—P. F. Haley, 78 . . . H. S. Jones and R. C. Cosgrove, 84's . . . T. J. Newcomb, 85 . . . Reed Muhl, 91 . . . E. H. Brown, 87 . . . Ohio Thin-Clads Split Into Three Sections This Week

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Ohio's scholastic track and field troupe will be split into three sections during the coming week-end for competition in relay events.

The heaviest week-end of the spring season finds the 11th annual Mentor relays, the ninth annual Salem night relays and the fifth annual Lanier relays at West Alexandria bidding for the schoolboy stars.

For the third straight year the team championships went to Toledo Scott in Class "A" and Columbus Upper Arlington in Class "B." Toledo Scott scored 37 points to top its nearest rival, Sandusky, by a 10-point margin. Cleveland Central, Mansfield winner, scored 11 points. Upper Arlington garnered 41½ points, and Columbiana was next in line with 23 points.

Four individual records and three team marks were set in the Wesleyan event.

Harmony among the competing teams at Wesleyan was shattered when Norman Pollman of Toledo Devilbiss withdrew his athletes from the meet after a relay team was disqualified. The disqualification was made in the one-mile relay when the anchor man of the Devilbiss quartet was joined by a teammate on the track during the last few yards of the race. Devilbiss had been assured of second place in the event prior to the disqualification.

Wrigley's New Pep-Tonic Works Wonders for Bruins

By SID FEDER, Associated Press Sports Writer

THAT shot in the arm that Pie Traynor gives his Pittsburgh Pirates every spring is beginning to wear off, like your favorite sulphur and molasses. And the new pep-tonic Phil Wrigley handed his Chicago Cubs—he says it's new, but its only old Tony Lazzeri and ancient Jack Russell in disguise—is working wonders.

Add those two seasonal health notes together, and what have you got? As usual, Pie's Pirates are falling asleep already, after their customary fast getaway, and jolly Cholly Grimm's gallopers are beginning to move up for that expected and awaited waltz to the wire with Terrible Terry's giants.

"Stooges" Beat Bucs.

The custom for the Bucs is to keep up their hot opening pace a little longer than this. Last year they waited until May 15. The tip-off came over the week-end when the Cincinnati Reds, Pittsburgh's all-America stooges, topped the Pirates in two games, adding a 4-1 dicision yesterday to Saturday's shutout.

That's just like saying that Ethiopia got up and punched Mussolini in the nose. The Reds had been a doormat for the Bucs so long it stopped being funny years ago. When they won Saturday, it was after 20 straight beatings by the Pirates. And when they repeated yesterday, on the strength of Linus Frey's two-run homer, it was simply unheard of.

That defeat dropped Pie and his boys down to third place in the National league and the Cubs, nosing out the St. Louis Cardinals, 6-5, marched in on the second spot. Again it was Lazzeri and Russell who turned the trick.

Lazzeri is the lad of 34 the Cubs got from the Yankees over the winter. He whacked a two-run homer in the second inning, his fourth of the season . . . and Russell went into the game in the fourth inning when Larry French got his lumps, and lasted the distance against the Gas House gang's late drive. It was Jack's second win of the week for the Cubs in a relief role.

Of course, the Cubs' conquest didn't help matters much in their chase after Terry's Terriers. The giants almost kicked a game away against Brooklyn before a crowd of 40,248, but shoved a run over in the eighth to stretch their winning streak to 10 straight with a 7-6 victory. Featuring the duel was Johnny McCarthy's homer with two abroad, his fourth of the season, and the first heav-o of the year for Boily Grimes. He got tough with Ump George Barr in the sixth and saw the rest of the game from the clubhouse.

Joe DiMaggio, who was somewhat banged up in a collision with a teammate in his seasonal debut Saturday, came back to action yesterday, but despite his first homer of the year, the Yankees dropped a close 4-3 decision to the Washington Senators and Elon Hogsett's five-hit pitching. Lefty Gomez lost his third in a row.

Foxx Hits Pair.

Jimmy Foxx hit two homers, but the Athletics topped the Boston Red Sox 8-6. St. Louis' Browns pushed across two tallies in the ninth to whip the Chicago White Sox, 7-5, and retain Buck Newsom's undefeated pitching record, although Buck wasn't around at the finish.

MID-ATLANTIC LEAGUE OPENS SKED TUESDAY

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Eight baseball teams of the Mid-Atlantic League prepared today to open their 14th campaign tomorrow with excellent prospects for a successful season.

Tonight's Grapple Show Called Off

Tonight's Quality club wrestling show at the Armory was called off today by Promoter Tim Nolan after he learned that Whitey Wahlberg of Duluth, Minn., who was to meet Otis Clingman of Texas, in the main event, had suffered an injury in a match last wek.

Rather than make a substitution, Nolan postponed the show until next week. 6

STEEL, SPECIAL ISSUES PACE GENERAL SLIDE

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Steels and specialties led a quiet downturn in today's stock market.

While the ticker tape loafed from the start, losses of fractions to around 2 points were widely distributed near the second hour. Bonds were uneven and commodities generally lower.

Holders of steel stock noted the survey of the magazine "Steel," which said private enterprise was accounting for scant activity in this industry, with principal demand coming from state, municipal and federal projects.

April buying, it was added, was slightly less than in March, seasonal increases not being sufficient to push the market off dead center.

From analytical quarters came forecasts that the low point for the federal reserve board adjusted index of industrial production would not be reached until June, if then.

LABOR LEAGUE ASSAILS DAVEY

Non-Partisan Group Launches Campaign Against Governor, Termed 'Militia Martin.'

(By Associated Press)

A mass meeting which Cleveland Public Hall management estimated at 6,000 persons launched the movement here Sunday.

Congressman Jerry J. O'Connell, Montana Democrat, said "if you continue to have a fascist dictator in the governor's chair in Ohio we may soon have one in every state."

"Denial of civil liberties in Ohio could lead to denial of constitutional right to workers everywhere," he warned. "AFL unions should join with CIO and other liberals to exert labor's power in politics."

Of the third party movement started by Gov. Philip F. LaFollette of Wisconsin, O'Connell said, "I admire the LaFollettes but it is untimely and unwise to join the forces of reaction to destroy President Roosevelt in 1938 and 1940."

Star Driver At Wheel of Truck In Pioneer Parade

The truck was driven by William Walker, employed by the George F. Alger company, Detroit, which hauls steel for Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company from Mansfield to Detroit.

Walker owns a silver cup, awarded by the American Truckers' association at a meet in Louisville last year, given him for a record of two years of driving without an accident, and for unusual skill in handling the truck. However, Walker has driven for five years without an accident.

On his truck in today's parade was depicted a schoolroom of the city's early days with pupils from Brinkerhoff, Bowman and Western avenue schools taking the roles of pioneer pupils.

HONOR PIONEERS AT CEREMONIES

the three-day journey of a group of pioneers from near Sandusky to Mansfield for protection, after they had been attacked by the Indians.

"Led by Rev. William Gurley and in constant fear of being scalped, the group struggled through the wilderness to Mansfield where there were blockhouses as defense against the aroused Indians," Wesson said.

"Each member of the colony here was assigned to duty in the two blockhouses to be on constant guard against attacks by the Indians," he said. "Contrary to general belief, there were no covered wagons in this area before the War of 1812 because the roads would permit use of nothing but horses and travel on foot."

After William Duff, of Ashland, an authority on the life of Johnny Appleseed, had eulogized the famous planter of apple trees, Mayor Claude M. Hunter of Mansfield suggested that the city provide a more fitting monument to the colorful character.

John Correll, general chairman of the Northwest territory, observance committee, described the Ordinance of 1787 as an emblem of liberty and one of the most important documents in the nation's history.

George H. Smith was chairman of the meeting yesterday and presided during the session. The invocation was given by Rev. Paul Hollingshead of the Central M. E. church, and the welcome by L. S. Ott, president of the Johnny Appleseed Area Scout council.

During the program members of Boy Scout troops 5 and 6 and Girl Scout troop 5 presented a pantomime depicting the lives of the early pioneers. Clad in the costumes of the frontier period and as Indians, the players gave their performance in front of the blockhouse.

and arranged by the Art Study club of which Mrs. Carl Spangler, Park Avenue west road, was chairman, is a spinning wheel from 1833, a sofa of a century ago owned by Mrs. Frank Lane, 907 Park avenue west road; needlepoint carpet slippers; and dozens of other beautiful antiques of local collections.

Red Flannels, Too.

Maybe "red flannels" aren't so old-fashioned when it's downright cold, but you just know they wore 'em back in the pioneer days. There's a pair hanging from a tree in the setting Scattergood's Dry Goods have in their North Walnut street window.

How would you like to have a hypodermic administered with the ivory syringe displayed in the Davis drug store window? It's part of a collection of early medical implements owned by E. J. Wessen. You will find it hard to believe, perhaps, but it's a reported fact that the lead plaster ointment in the old-fashioned medical chest in the same exhibit, is still moist after 140 years!

Very elegant, indeed, is the yellow brocade and chiffon dress that the late Mrs. William Hahn of Mansfield wore to McKinley's inaugural ball at Washington. With the feather fan she carried, the costume is part of the fashion exhibit in the R. B. Maxwell window.

A lady wasn't a lady in the old days if she didn't wear a veil when in mourning. There's a black chiffon veil in the Holly Style shop that was worn by the grandmother of Mrs. J. Wesley Drumm, 104 West First street. In the same window is a hand made wedding dress of very fine beige challis with dust ruffles that swept the street as the lady walked by. It is now the property of Mrs. Andrew Theiss, 98 Parkwood drive.

They Had Slim Waists.

It takes a slim waist to wear the gowns of the ladies of the gay '90s but there's one salesgirl in the Golden-Russell store who will model a wash-waist frock that a bride wore on her trip from Ireland here in the late 1800's. The store manager couldn't put the dress on a mannequin, but Miss Madelein Bair, with a waistline of 21 and ½ inches can wear it!

A rolling pin that's more than 100 years old and belongs to N. W. Minnear, 186 North Main street, at the moment, causes quite a comment in the Charles Ritter Co. window, along with an early sewing machine, solid silver shoe buckle, and oxen yoke.

Windows Draw Crowds.

They compared today's electric lights with the candles in their molds and many a housewife could be heard giving thanks that she lived in the day of stream-lined kitchen equipment and electricity instead of iron kettles and wood stoves.

Everything from a 300-year-old cane, belonging to Mrs. S. L. Rhodes, 57 Acheson road, to a black lace blouse that was worn by the grandmother of Mardell Marquis, 94½ Main street, is in the display at Artwill's. Among the other exhibits that no one should miss in doing the rounds, are the doll collection of Mrs. Guy E. Shawk, 208 Foster street, in the Book Shop window, the collection of guns in the Martin Hardware company window that belong to Guy E. Shawk, 208 Foster street; the patchwork quilt and shawl of Mrs. Margaret Baldwin, 150 Johns avenue, also in the Book Shop; and the oxen yoke and old fashioned watch with painted crystal in the window of Schmutzler's.

Solves Wallpaper Problem

IT'S TIME FOR REDECORATING

Mansfield Wallpaper Company Has Complete Selection of Latest Patterns.

With the season for redecorating well under way, Mansfield Wallpaper and Paint company, 118 North Main street, offers a complete selection of the most modern wallpaper patterns.

Among them are 30-inch plastics both in plain and conventional patterns that are designed to eliminate the strip effect. Then there are engraves for living rooms, made partly of cloth and of such style and material that they are serviceable from 10 to 20 years. This paper is washable.

For bathrooms and kitchens there are wax and varnished paper that can be cleaned regularly without any harmful effects.

The Mansfield store has paper to meet the needs and styles of any home and of any room.

In addition, Mansfield Wallpaper offers to measure rooms to determine the number of rolls necessary for papering. There is no obligation for this service. The company also aids home owners in solving their decorating problems, advising them of the colors, patterns as as well as prices for papering the various rooms.

The store can furnish paperhangers to do the work at 20 cents a roll. Wallpaper orders are delivered in the city. There is no charge for trimming.

The same personnel that operated the store when it was the Fisher Wallpaper and Paint company is in charge of the business now. Lois Shuey is manager.

THERE'S SUCH A THING AS TOO MUCH INSURANCE, STANTON SAYS

RALPH C. STANTON

Do you know that there is such a folly as owning too much insurance? And that's the word of an insurance broker, too.

For instance, one home owner who bought in 1930, has insured his house every year since for $9,500, the amount he paid.

"An intelligent insurance man will not bring you a renewal policy of the same amount every year," Ralph C. Stanton, insurance broker in the Walpark building says. "Rather he will advise you to avoid wasting dollars and to insure the value of the property.

"Depreciation and obsolesence cannot be stopped by paint. Very few building properties appreciate in value. Most of them depreciate.

The more building there is in a small city the more depreciation older properties must take. Even in a booming city is this true."

There is such a thing too, as too little insurance, Mr. Stanton points out. He added that the owner of the $9,500 home cited above during the same years paid for insurance on $2,500 of house, furnishings and clothes, while an inventory showed a $6,600 value.

"A burglary loss of $320 and two bicycles stolen were not insured, though they could have been for very little more than the 'too much home insurance.' Nine windows broken by the children, in those years, could have all been replaced by insurance costing only $1.66 a year.

"Instead of buying a lot of different policies to pay any losses on or to personal property, every kind of a loss can now be covered by an 'all-in-one' policy. No matter how or when a loss occurs to clothing, silverware, jewelry, furs, linens, baggage, sporting equipment, cameras, bicycles and all household furnishings, except loss by moths, wear and malicious destruction, this policy pays and the low cost appeals to all who want complete coverage. Whether traveling or at home, if a robber says, 'hand over that ring,' do as you like—if it is insured."

IT'S SPECIALTY

Spaghetti's Featured by New East Fourth Restaurant.

One of the most recent additions to Mansfield's business life is a modern restaurant and beer parlor located at 140 East Fourth street, known as Spaghetti Inn.

The new establishment not only aims at extending a sincere welcome to its patrons, but it also emphasizes cleanliness, both in preparing and serving its foods, Joe Parella, the proprietor, points out.

As the name indicates, spaghetti is a specialty at the inn. Fresh spaghetti is available every day. Chicken goulash is another popular favorite that is served on Saturday nights.

A new automobile tire incorporating a revolutionary non-skid tread design engineered to give unusual traction and braking effectiveness on slippery roads has been announced by a leading rubber company.

Urges Business to Cooperate to Return Prosperity

C. OF C. HEAD IN APPEAL TO END SETBACK

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — President George H. Davis of the United States Chamber of Commerce summoned business men today to the task of leading the country back to prosperity.

Opening the general sessions of the chamber's 26th annual meeting, he expressed faith in the capitalistic system and declared that it was time for business to concentrate on agreement rather than on magnifying reasons for disagreement.

Points To 'Solution.'

"I believe that this American business system, if it is permitted to operate effectually, if it is disentangled from hampering restrictions and freed from unnecessary and ill-advised checks and obstructions," he said, "will not only solve the very grave problems with which we are contending, but pave the way for a resumption of the forward drive that has made us the greatest economic power in the world and can make us still greater."

Davis, who is head of a Kansas City grain firm, joined with B. C. Heacock, president of the Caterpillar Tractor company of Peoria, Ill., and Dr. Robert A. Millikan, one of the world's outstanding scientists, in a defense of the capitalistic system of free enterprise as contrasted with other systems employing so-called "planned economies."

Unlike Winthrop Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National bank of New York, who last night blasted the New Deal spending-lending-credit policies, none of today's major speakers mentioned the Roosevelt administration by name.

Hits Recovery Plan.

Aldrich, who with 15 other influential industrialists and financiers offered President Roosevelt cooperation in his recovery drive last week, addressed the International Chamber of Commerce banquet. He said that the administration's program of increased federal spending was risking national solvency, credit and the future of the currency system.

"I think that nothing is more needed at the present time than a prolonged period of quiet," he said, "not a three to six months' breathing spell, but a two or three year breathing spell."

Farmers To Hear Outline of Crop Insurance Plan

Details of the new crop insurance plan of the Agricultural Adjustment administration will be explained at Coshocton May 12 to representatives of the farmers from Crawford, Morrow, Richland, Knox, Licking, Ashland, Coshocton, Muskingum, Tuscarawas, Guernsey, Noble, Carroll, Harrison, Belmont, Monroe and Jefferson counties

John Cummings of Sullivan, who will be in charge of the meeting, pointed out today that the program provides separate insurance for 50 per cent or 75 per cent of an "average crop." Wheat insurance plan becomes effective with the 1939 harvest.

Administration representatives at Washington said the maximum premium paid for a three-quarter crop insurance would be about two bushels, or its cash equivalent, to each acre, with an average three-quarter crop of 17 bushels. The premium under the 50 per cent plan would be about half that of the three-quarter yield plan.

Attending the meeting from Richland county will be G. L. Taylor, chairman of the county committee on agricultural conservation; G. A. Mentzer and C. C. Till, members of the county committee, and George B. Ganyard, county agent.

County officials and employes at the courthouse didn't want their quarters to be without decorations for the Northwest Territory parade yesterday just because the law won't permit expenditure of county money for such prrposes. So they took up a collection. Not only did they get enough to provide colored banners and streamers for the building, but they had money left over for flags for Memorial day. Contributions to the fund came entirely from within the courthouse.

Deputies at Sheriff E. P. Long's office thought they had heard most of the woes of humanity, but they got a new complaint today. A woman at Newville, the village that is being moved to make way for a lake in the Muskingum Conservancy district, reported to deputies that lily bulbs and shrubs had been stolen from her lawn. She didn't care about the shrubs, she said, but she did want the lily bulbs returned, because they are of a rare variety.

FOUR STATES GO TO POLLS

Florida Senatorial Primary With 5 Candidates, Draws Interest of U. S.

(By Associated Press)

Florida Democrats chose their nominee for U. S. senator today in a five-cornered contest, whose national aspects made it outstanding among primary elections in four states.

Sen. Claude Pepper asked renomination as a consistent supporter of President Roosevelt's policies. He bore the endorsement of James Roosevelt, the president's son and secretary.

One of his opponents was Rep. Mark Wilcox, who has opposed several White House recommendations. Wilcox as a campaigner criticized the "brainstorms of brain trusters."

Florida Republicans also had a senatorial primary, their first contest in history for a statewide nomination.

In South Dakota, Alabama and Indiana, local interest was high but national issues were not so directly involved. All four states were selecting nominees for congress and various state offices.

The South Dakota campaign witnessed a last-minute injection of religious issues. Anti-Catholic handbills were circulated anonymously, and a reward was offered by former Gov. Tom Berry for identification of their source.

BRITISH TROOPS CHASE JAPS WITH BAYONETS AT SHANGHAI

(By United Press)

SHANGHAI — British troops chased Japanese troops at bayonet point from the courtyard of the British consulate general today in the most serious of a series of clashes which started Sunday.

Two truckloads of British seamen, clad in khaki troop uniforms sought to cross the garden bridge across Soochow creek, which separates the International Settlement proper from the Japanese Hongkew area, to reach a British gunboat docked at the waterfront.

Japanese sentries challenged both trucks and refused to permit them to pass despite Japanese navy passes which the Britons presented.

The second turned back. Japanese sentries followed it inside the compound or courtyard of the British consulate general, which is situated just south of the creek as the International Settlement end of the garden bridge.

Eye witnesses said that in the courtyard the Japanese pushed aside a British sergeant major who tried, single handed, to halt them.

The tars in the British navy truck, it was added, were watching. There was a sudden clicking of steel on steel as the British navy men pulled their bayonets from their scabbards and affixed them to their rifle muzzles. They jumped down from the truck and started for the Japanese.

Just before this incident, the Japanese Domei News agency announced that the Japanese yesterday halted and searched the 2,653-ton British passenger steamship Kingyuan, in the belief that it carried 30,000 nickel ingots which had belonged to the Shanghai mint After the search the Japanese permitted the ship to sail for Hong Kong.

POLICE SEEKING OTHER PARTS OF WOMAN'S BODY

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND—Spurred by the discovery of the torso, left foot, and legs, cut at the knees and hips, of the 11th victim of this city's mad torso slayer, police today searched the muddy Cuyahoga river for further parts of the body.

Detective Peter Merylo, who has been working on the torso murders for more than two years, said search for the hands would be pressed in the hope of aiding identification through fingerprints.

Meanwhile, police continued to search for suspects, hundreds of whom have been picked up since the discovery in the autumn of 1935 of the dismembered bodies of Edward Andrassy and an unidentified man in the lonely Kingsbury Run section.

Sees 'Hesitation Marks.'

Differing slightly from earlier discoveries, the latest body showed more "hesitation marks" in the dissection, although the work was skillful enough to indicate it was the same mad slayer, Coroner S. R. Gerber said.

He said he was certain the parts of the body found were from the same victim whose severed leg was discovered April 9 in the river, about a mile below yesterday's discovery.

The victim, Dr. Gerber said, was a woman about 25 years of age, weighing 100 to 110 pounds, and standing five feet four inches. Two scars, one, and possibly both of which, resulted from an abdominal aperation, were the only identifying marks.

Thoroughgoing examination of the victim, who may have been a mother and may have been under medical treatment, was to be continued.

The body was found beneath the West Third street bridge by Oscar Meister, a bridge guard, who noticed a thigh floating in the river and nearby a burlap sack.

The thigh and sack were pulled to shore with a boathook, another thigh falling from the sack when it was lifted from the water.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., Surprises Gotham, Shuns Mansion For Tiny Trailer

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—There is an age in little boys when they like to dig caves and build shacks and tree houses, and one of the most exciting events of my own youth at that stage was a night before the Fourth of July, when I was allowed to sleep at the home of a friend, and we sneaked out, after dark, to climb into a big oak, where we had built a beautiful cottage among the branches.

* * *

We had a piece of old carpet on the floor and a candle for light, and we turned in on the hard boards about 10:30, but were so excited that we could not sleep and were up and out, exploding bombs under the neighbors' windows long before dawn.

We had good enough homes, but there was something special about that unsightly crate in the big tree, with nailheads protruding through the boards and with scarcely room for two, small as we were.

All experience is said to add to our understanding, or something like that, however, and the episode of the tree-house on that night before the glorious Fourth explains to me an otherwise strange party which hove up at the door of my neighbor, George Bye, the writer's agent, the other day, in the far suburbs.

* * *

Mr. Bye and his good wife were about to gnash their teeth at their rations when, with a cheery "What ho" and "Hi, there!" a motor trailer pulled up and out popped no less than a genuine, first-degree Vanderbilt, to wit, Cornelius Jr., who announced he had come to spend the night and could they stake him to a small patch of clearing where he might make fast?

Well, to be sure, they could, and wouldn't he come in and swizzle a small swozzle to pass the time while they made ready the spare bed and slaughter another steer for dinner.

No, no! Not at all. Thanks, old man, but Mr. Vanderbilt was fixing to dine on his own provisions in his own little diggings, and, when dinner was done, to fold up the stove and collapse the ice box and pull the disappearing bed out of the bread locker.

Before he left, Mr. Vanderbilt delighted in showing his hosts through his little tree house on wheels. He showed them the little locker where he kept his suits and coats, the chest of drawers where he kept his underwear and socks, the bathtub concealed beneath the bed, the collapsible desk on which he writes his articles on a typewriter which disappears into a niche beneath the closet in which he keeps the eggs and bacon, alongside the compartment where he stores his Scotch and makes the ice cubes in a refrigerator run by a motor concealed in the stern.

* * *

This is the home in which Mr. Vanderbilt has toured this country and Europe and which, when he went close to the Spanish border in France, was momentarily detained on the suspicion that it was a new type military tank. Inside, it is not much more than twice the size of the cell to which Richard Whitney has been consigned at Sing Sing.

But I have known rich men with spacious and beautiful homes to cramp themselves in moldy quarters below the waterline on little offshore boats called yachts in which to sleep on hard shelves, two in a room, with portholes closed to keep out the wash and also exclude fresh air, sparingly using fresh water lest they find themselves out and forever marveling at the chef's resourcefulness in frying eggs and bacon in the morning. They squeeze into cubicles to sleep and dress for days at a time.

In the morning they feel like the wrath of God, as I felt that morning of July the Fourth after a night in the tree house and other little boys after tossing and squirming in pirates' caves and shanties in the vacant lot a block from home.

Hollywood Speaks—

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—There's a story behind Joan Crawford's new straight five-year contract with Metro—"straight" meaning without options—signed the other day in New York.

Well, the matter of Joan's new contract has been in the air for some time. There were all sorts of rumors that she might leave Metro, where she'd been on the payroll continuously since 1925 when as Lucille LeSueur she got $75 a week.

Whether with contract discussions in mind we don't know, but one day Joan arranged with the studio music department to make a recording with full orchestra of an operatic aria and a couple of popular songs.

* * *

Joan's agent, Mike Levee, heard the record and went to see Louis B. Mayer, the Metro boss Just as a favor, would Mr. Mayer listen to a voice he'd discovered? Mr. Mayer would and did—and at the end he wanted to know WHO. It seems Joan really has a voice, and if you doubt it there's that contract for five stright years to prove it. Actually, it may amount to seven years because Joan has the right to appear in three stage plays and to broadcast, and the plays would mark time out.

So around 1943, at the soonest, Joan will leave the M-G-M fold, with a record of at least 18 years at one studio, 15 of them as a star.

When Joan was just hitting stardom in "Our Dancing Daughters" one of Hollywood's reigning queens was Anna Q. Nilsson The lissome blond star of "Ponjola" and other films was fated to leave the screen at the height of her glory. She fractured a hip in a horseback accident, spent five years as a cripple, and five years after that traveling.

* * *

Met her again on the set of "Prison Farm" the other day—her first picture since the accident. She has a small role, that of a prison matron, but she is contented, alive and eager to "find my niche."

"Ten years make a difference," she smiled, "and I couldn't expect to play the youthful roles I once had. But one can't live in Hollywood, having once been a part of it, without wanting to work. Money? I've enough. I had a good manager who invested my earnings wisely. My health is fine. I'm taking up golf"—she chuckled—"that's good for reducing hips. People still inquire solicitously how I'm feeling, and seem surprised that I'm no longer an invalid. Horseback-riding? Well, I haven't been on a horse since my accident, and I can't say I'd go out of my way to meet one—but I wouldn't be afraid to ride if I had it to do!"
